SECRET MOVES TO END ITALY'S WAR RUMORED

London Newspapers Tell of Undercover Negotiations to Bring Peace in Ethiopia, But Reports Meet With Denials

PESSIMISM AT FRENCH CAPITAL

Associated Press

London, Oct. 16.—Rumors of secret negotiations to end the Italo-Ethiopian war persisted in London to-day. Newspapers presented such news under page-wide headlines, but the man in the street was confused by reiterated denials of conversations to that end.

The press carried unconfirmed reports of what Premier Baldwin had told two deputations of legislators he received prior to yesterday's cabinet meeting. Representing two groups, Conservative members of the House of Commons and the peers, the deputations sought from Mr. Baldwin some assurance Great Britain would not be involved in war.

It was understood Premier Baldwin, accompanied by Lord Stanhope, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, received them for an interview lasting an hour and ten minutes, and pledged them to strictest secrecy.

NO ASSURANCE

The political writer of The London Daily Express said the Premier had refused to give the two groups an assurance the government would not associate itself with any policy likely to lead to war.

The newspaper added the deputations were dissatisfied with this answer, and intend to express their uneasiness over the government's foreign policy when the Commons

MUCH BOMBING AT WAR FRONT

Italians continued to bomb Ethiopian military points.

An Italian reconnaissance flight disclosed Ras Seyoum, Ethiopian northern commander, has dug in to make a stand on a line more than 100 miles south of Aduwa as Fascists drive toward Makale.

Two Ethiopian forces invade Italian Somaliland.

Two Italian planes, it was said, made forced landings at Issaas and Kitafari. The pilots were reported as taken prisoner by Ethiopian soldiers.

The villages bombed were Tafara and Khatama.

The bombardment, it was stated, was aimed at covering an advance of 10,000 Italians.

Here To-day On Brief Visit

HON. J. N. GARNER
Vice-president Of The United States

Victoria Greets Garner and Big U.S. Congressional Party

GARNER NEVER TALKS POLITICS

That Is What Vice-president of United States Tells Visiting Newsmen

By STAFF REPRESENTATIVE OF THE TIMES.

Seattle, Oct. 16.—White-haired, ruddy-complexioned John Nance Garner, Vice-president of the United States of America, yesterday evening received in exclusive interview press representatives of Victoria, the only interview he will give to Canadian newspapers on his present voyage, which to-day takes him to Victoria by the American Mail liner President Grant on his way to attend the formal inauguration ceremonies in Manila of Manuel Quezon as president of the new Philippine Commonwealth.

First of all we asked him what he thought about the general election in Canada yesterday. He said he didn't know anything about it. He then explained he never talked about the political affairs of any country, including his own. He said he had never talked of his official business since he was sworn in as vice-president in 1932. He left the talking to his boss, the president.

"I always say my boss is the speaking partner of the firm," said Mr. Garner. "I'm deaf, blind and dumb as far as politics is concerned."

Noted Statesmen In Delegation Here

Victoria to-day welcomed to Canada the vice-president of the United States, Hon. John Garner, and the party of forty-six members of the United States Senate and the House of Representatives, who are sailing from here this evening on the SS. President Grant for the Orient to take part in the ceremonies of inauguration of the first president of the Philippine Commonwealth.

The vice-president and his party were greeted here at the docks when the liner berthed at 4 o'clock by Commander G. C. Jones of the Canadian navy, Brigadier D. J. MacDonald, D.S.O., officer commanding the Canadian army's Work Point Barracks, representing the Dominion of Canada, and Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Premier of the province.

Accompanied by Hon. Theodore Jaekel, U.S. Consul in Victoria, they took the vice-president to Government House where he was welcomed to Canada by Lieutenant-Governor J. W. Fordham Johnson.

At 6 o'clock this evening the whole party are being tendered a dinner at the Empress Hotel by the government of British Columbia and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce. During their stay here the Senators and Congressmen were taken in charge by a committee of citizens and driven around the city.

Included in the visiting party were those whose names were internationally known, such as Senators Nye of North Dakota, King of Utah, La Follette Jr. of Wisconsin, Neely of West Virginia, Robinson of Arkansas, Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

The vice-president said he considered the voyage of the Congressional party of deep international significance, for the inauguration of Manuel Quezon as president of the Philippine Commonwealth on November 15 will start the islands on their way to complete independence during the next ten years.

"President McKinley told the world that we would liberate the Philippines," Hon. Mr. Garner said, referring to the promises made after the United States took over the Philippines from Spain at the conclusion of the Spanish-American war. "We are now doing what we said we would."

FRENCH CABINET REPORTED SHAKY

Associated Press

London, Oct. 16.—The London Star asserted to-day that Premier Laval of France was in an unsafe political position and that the fall of his Cabinet was only a matter of a few days or weeks.

"This explains his frantic endeavors at conciliation," said The Star. "Laval can no longer escape from the predicament of either repudiating his personal pledges to Mussolini or forfeiting the future support of France's allies and friends."

Favorable Reaction to Victory of Liberals in General Election

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 16.—Assurance of a stable ministry in Canada has moved Canadian loans on British exchanges fractionally higher. Vancouver stocks, which had been suspended, are again quoted, although at wide and nominal figures.

Following on the first favorable reaction of the London press to the defeat in Canada of "panacea parties," a genial tone was noted to-day in other British newspapers.

The Manchester Guardian believes the most hopeful feature of the election for the British empire and the world, suffering now from economic nationalism, is that Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King made the reduction of tariffs the main plank in his election platform. "With such a majority," adds The Guardian, "Mr. King has a clear field to plan the country's emergence from depression difficulties, and all the commonwealth will wish him well."

MANY QUAKES IN MONTANA

Half Hundred Shocks in Four Days; Helena Citizens in Nervous State

Associated Press

Helena, Mont., Oct. 16.—The 12,000 inhabitants of Montana's capital city had a bad case of "jitters" to-day.

Taut nerves and haggard faces characterized citizens terrified by more than half a hundred earth tremors which have shaken the city during a four-day period.

The rumble of trucks and sudden gusts of wind caused usually calm persons to jump with fright.

Two fairly heavy tremors late yesterday added to the $50,000 property damage which resulted from the first quake, widening cracks already opened and resulting in new damage of a minor nature.

Helena weather bureau officials placed the number of shocks at more than fifty.

TRADE PACTS ARE EXPECTED

Japan and U.S. Look For Quick Action By New Canadian Government

Associated Press

Tokio, Oct. 16.—Official Japan hailed the sweeping Liberal Party victory in Monday's election in Canada to-day as presaging an early termination of the Japanese-Canadian trade conflict.

The foreign Office said the government hoped to open negotiations speedily which would lead to the laying down of tariff weapons recently employed by both sides and the conclusion of a new trade agreement.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH U.S.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Renewed efforts to speed up negotiation of the proposed Canadian-United States reciprocal trade pact were predicted to-day, since the Canadian election has been removed as an element of uncertainty.

Negotiations for the proposed pact proceeded without interruption during the election campaign, it was learned, and prospects were said to be good for the conclusion of an agreement before the end of November.

Ottawa, Oct. 16—Premier-elect King to-day took time out from his cabinet-making task to attend the wedding of the daughter of one of his political adversaries and to propose the bride's health.

The Liberal leader went this afternoon to the wedding of Miss Cynthia Jean Hill, daughter of Vamnet P. Hill, Conservative runner-up in West Ottawa in the general election, and George Mansion Campbell of Ottawa.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie Summoned From Vancouver and Premier Gardiner From Saskatchewan

Bennett's Colleagues Are Clearing Desks

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—Hon. Ian Mackenzie, former Liberal Minister of Immigration, returned to Parliament in Vancouver Centre in Monday's election, has been summoned to Ottawa and will leave Friday, he said to-day.

Regina, Oct. 16.—Premier J. G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan left Regina early to-day for Ottawa. His departure was preceded by a meeting of the full provincial cabinet yesterday evening.

SOON IN OFFICE

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—The Bennett government to-day is carrying on while Premier-Elect Mackenzie King makes the necessary preparations for his incoming Liberal administration to assume office possibly in ten days.

Important decisions and questions of policy are being stood over for the victorious Liberal Party to decide. Only routine matters essential to the continuance of the government of a country are being dealt with.

LEADERS TALK

In a two-hour conference yesterday evening Mr. Bennett is understood to have intimated to Mr. King his willingness to hand over the reins of power when the Premier-elect was ready to assume government. The meeting concluded without producing any announcement.

The talk took place in Mr. King's office in the Parliament Buildings, where Mr. Bennett called on the Premier-elect.

PARTY STANDING

With the returns from two constituencies—Cariboo, B.C., and Chapleau, Que.—still incomplete and those ridings therefore still in the doubtful column, the party standing in the new Commons this afternoon was as follows: Liberals, 168; Conservatives, 41; C.C.F., 8; Social Credit, 17; Reconstruction 1; Independent-Liberals, 3; Liberal - Progressives, 2; Independent, 1; U.F.O.-Labor 1; Independent-Conservative, 1.

CLEARING DESKS

Members of the defeated Bennett government to-day began to gather in Ottawa to clear up their offices and prepare for their departure. For the most part the ministers campaigned in their home constituencies until the end and remained home for election day.

HERRIDGE QUITS LEGATION POST

Brother-in-law of Premier Bennett Resigns as Minister to United States

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Hon. W. D. Herridge has tendered his resignation as Canadian minister to the United States it was officially announced to-day. The resignation is to take effect on its acceptance by the new government.

Mr. Herridge will proceed at once, winding up his activities in the Canadian legation in Washington.

While the resignation of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson as Canadian High Commissioner in London has been forecast, there was no announcement about it. Mr. Ferguson is busily engaged in Geneva at the League of Nations meeting.

LEGATION POSTS

The posts of Canadian ministers at Washington and in other foreign countries have not been regarded as political appointments. When the Conservative Goverment came into power, Hon. Vincent Massey had been relieved of his Washington post and had been appointed to be High Commissioner to Great Britain. Premier Bennett at that time expressed the view the Canadian High Commissioner in London should be of the same political views as the government. Mr. Massey retired and Mr. Ferguson was appointed.

However, Sir Herbert Marler, appointed by the previous King Government as minister to Japan, and Hon. Philippe Roy, in Paris, remained in their positions. Mr. Herridge was appointed to the vacant Washington post by the Bennett Government. His appointment was criticized by Mr. King during the election campaign.

Boycott Plan For Goods From Italy

League of Nations Committee Considers Scheme For All Member States to Buy Nothing From Italy While Invasion of Ethiopia Continues

Associated Press

Geneva, Oct. 16.—No decision was made at a meeting of the economic sanctions committee of the League of Nations to-day on a proposal that League states buy nothing from Italy.

The proposal, originally advanced by the British, for a boycott by League nations on purchases from Italy, was also supported warmly by The Netherlands and Belgium.

Roumania, Sweden, Russia and Turkey also favored it. Switzerland, however, advanced some questions.

Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Minister for League Affairs, emerged from the session in high good humor nevertheless, and sources close to him said no real opposition had developed to this additional form of pressure against Italy.

Ottawa Conference In November Plan

Taschereau Advised to Be Ready For Dominion-provincial Meeting Next Month; B.C. Awaits Word, But Prepares

Canadian Press

Quebec, Oct. 16.—A Dominion-Provincial conference will be called early in November, Premier Taschereau was advised to-day in a telegram from Premier-elect King.

The message requested Mr. Taschereau to arrange his engagements to leave clear the early part of the month. The definite date will be decided later, the telegram indicated, but Mr. Taschereau said it was definite the conference would be early next month.

NO WORD HERE

While Premier Pattullo to-day had received no word from Premier-elect Mackenzie King as to the date of the Dominion-Provincial conference, he indicated this province would be prepared whenever the meeting was called.

In view of the lateness of the election, it had not been expected here the conference could be held before the first of the year. It will take some time for Mr. King to get his new government organized, and then the Christmas season will be approaching.

However, in the light of Mr. King's statement on the Coast that, if elected, one of his first actions would

J. E. Edwards, Indian, Makes Allegation at George Brothers' Trial

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 16. — Joseph Edwards, thirty-two, crippled Illahel Indian, testified at the George Brothers' trial on a murder charge to-day that Indian Agent Alfred H. Barber of Merritt, B.C., and J. R. Nicholson, prosecutor, had told him he would get $500 for his evidence if the crown won the case.

Edwards's statement was made during cross-examination by Stuart Henderson, defence counsel. Richardson, Eneas, Alex and Joseph George are charged with the murder of Dominion Constable F. H. Gisbourne at the Canford Indian reserve May 23, 1934, when Provincial Constable Percy Carr was also slain.

The witness testified he had been taken to Merritt several days after the constable had been slain and had been questioned by Mr. Nicholson. He swore he told them that if the police had not shot they would not have died. He said the men (Nicholson and Barber), were "good to me," and they told him he would get $500 if they won.

Boycott Plan For Goods From Italy

Mr. Eden emphasized League states purchase 70 per cent of all Italy's exports.

The economic sanctions committee will resume its discussion of possible repercussions from such a campaign and methods of minimizing the effects of League states joining the boycott.

BRITISH PROPOSAL

The proposal of the British delegation for prohibition of importation of Italian goods follows:

"The governments of the members of the League of Nations will prohibit importation into their territories of all goods (other than gold or silver bullion or coin) consigned from or produced or manufactured in Italy or Italian possessions from whatever place arriving.

"Goods grown or produced in Italy or Italian possessions which have been subjected to some process in another country, and goods manufactured partly in Italy or Italian possessions and partly in another country, will be considered as falling within the scope of the prohibition unless 25 per cent or more of the value of the goods when they left the place where they were last consigned is attributable to processes undergone since the goods last left Italy or Italian possessions.

NOT EXCEPTED

"Goods which are the subject of existing contracts will not be excepted from the prohibition.

"Goods en route at the time of imposition of the prohibition will be excepted from its operation.

"In giving effect to this provision, governments may for the convenience of administration fix an appropriate date having regard for the normal time necessary for transport from Italy after which goods will become subject to the prohibition.

"Personal belongings of travelers from Italy or Italian possessions may also be excepted from its operations."

COUNTER-BALANCE

Geneva, Oct. 16 (Associated Press).—Two "first aid" proposals for those states likely to suffer from repercussions from the economic sanctions against Italy were laid to-day before the League of Nations sub-committee for mutual assistance.

Nicolas Titulescu, Roumanian Foreign Minister, expressed agreement that the "buy nothing boycott," advocated by Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Minister, should be put into effect, but pointed out something concrete should be done to offset the trade losses to small states, likely to lose their Italian market if the plan goes through.

He suggested a "clearing house" arrangement by which the trade which Italy would lose through the operation of the "buy nothing plan" could be allocated among various League states according to the size of their losses.

Associated Press

Paris, Oct. 16.—Officials disclosed to-day France and Great Britain are asking Washington if the United States is willing to restrict its imports from Italy in case such a sanction against Premier Mussolini's nation is applied by the League of Nations.

These same authorities also stated a similar question is being asked of other power, including Germany, Japan and Brazil, which are not members of the League.

COAL EXPORTS DROP

The improvement commission meeting at Newcastle reported coal and coke shipments from England during the last nine months showed a decrease of 552,485 tons, compared with the same period last year. Remarking this was due mainly to a fall in shipments to Italy, the lord mayor of Newcastle said the effects on revenue meant serious wage reductions must be made.

GLOOMY AT PARIS

Paris, Oct. 16.—A gloomy outlook for Premier Laval's previous efforts toward a peaceful settlement of the East African conflict was reported in official circles here to-day.

"The prospect for conciliation is bad," said one official, indicating Premier Laval had failed to receive any encouragement in his talks this week with the Italian and British ambassadors to France.

A report Britain was inclining toward a process of automatic aid from France under the Locarno Pact without awaiting a League of Nations' definition of the aggressor in case France was attacked by Germany, was published in the newspaper L'Oeuvre.

France has long been trying to obtain such an agreement.

Rome, Oct. 16.—A government spokesman stated to-day Italy was well aware of Premier Laval's efforts for a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict—but doubted the French statesman would succeed.

Italian officials were in agreement with Premier Mussolini's determination to conquer Ethiopia, no matter what happens.

As for the campaign in East Africa, it went ahead while authorities stated Italy's willingness to refrain from bombing Addis Ababa, the capital, depended entirely on the Ethiopians.

It was stated this answer had been sent to the diplomatic representatives of foreign governments stationed in Addis Ababa who had interceded on behalf of their legations and nationals in the mountain city.

NO OFFERS

The government spokesman said Italy was not a party to any peace negotiations and had made no compromise offers to anyone.

Although Italy is willing to spare Addis Ababa from her air bombers, as she did Aksum, it was stated such an assurance must not be seized on by the Ethiopians as an invitation to concentrate troops in the vicinity.

An official source stated the Ethiopian people must discontinue what he called their practice of painting red crosses at random on the roofs of houses in the hope of forestalling bombardments.

He declared that when the Italian troops entered Aduwa practically every housetop was decorated with the Red Cross Society emblem and that Italy had protested against this practice to the League of Nations.

realization it contends harmony must be obtained between the western farmers and the eastern manufacturers. "Economically Canada has long been a country divided against itself," says The Post. "It is to be feared Mr. King may speedily discover his policies are not welcome in many quarters when he tries to impose them."

The Birmingham Post declares Premier Bennett refused to realize Canada's solid opposition to a policy in which he backed big business regardless of its effects on the little man. The Post hopes Mr. King will be wiser and more tactful than Mr. Bennett in dealing with the Ottawa trade agreements.

Mr. Garner said he would "shake hands with the boys in Victoria, but I'll make no speech," when asked about speaking at the dinner this evening.

"You know," he added, "when I was in Congress I opened up. But since the day I was elected vice-president I've said nothing."

The vice-president puffed away on his cigar of a Mexican brand he smokes persistently. He shook hands and talked freely with members of the Canadian welcoming party, just as if he had been chatting leaning over a ranch gate in Texas. Victorians who met him began to see why Texans have been sending him to Washington undefeated since 1902. It is said they have some old-fashioned ideas about politics on the Texas plains, where they like their politicians with courage and integrity.

It was recalled by those who had read of his career, that "Cactus Jack" Garner left his birthplace, Red River County, Texas, when he was young to study law. He played professional baseball and traded horses with the money he made and studied law. He was admitted to the bar in 1890.

Mrs. Garner, who is with him, was his secretary before he married her, and she still officiates in that capacity, starting work at 7.30 o'clock every morning when they are in Washington.

"She says I smoke too many cigars," he said, speaking of her. "She's after me to slow down. But I'm in pretty good shape now. I can't exercise when I'm in Washington. Ever since I was elected people recognize me from my pictures when I go out to do some walking and keep stopping me. But down in Uvalde I have a pecan grove. I just go out and pick up pecans. When you pick up 200 or 300 pecans you've had some exercise stooping over. In that way I've taken off a lot of weight."

Asked what he would do on the long trip across the Pacific, Mr. Garner said a programme had been drawn up, but he did not know its details.

"I suppose we'll play a little draw poker on the boat and talk about each other," he added. "They say we may meet the Emperor of Japan. I've brought along a couple of pairs of new cotton socks, so I won't be embarrassed like William Jennings Bryan. He had a hole in his sock when he took his shoes off to meet the Emperor—or so the story goes."

GALA FAREWELL THIS MORNING

The party, which includes the wives of most of the Senators and Representatives and a group of the most distinguished newspaper men in the United States, was given a rousing send-off when they sailed from Seattle just before noon.

The big liner and the dock were bedecked with the flags of the nations bordering on the Pacific. The reception, in which state and city officials and members of the party took part before a gathering of citizens of the northwest, delayed sailing for nearly half an hour. From a platform on the pier, gay with masses of flowers and with a band in attendance, there was much speech-making before the liner pulled away. The farewell demonstration was broadcast over a coast-to-coast radio hook-up.

GREAT FAREWELL AT SEATTLE

The Vice-President and Mrs. Garner and the Senators and Representatives drove through Seattle streets to the dock shortly before 10 o'clock this morning. They were escorted by a squad of motorcycle police. At the wharf a military band was playing.

The Vice-President wore a wide-brimmed Texas hat. He shook hands with hundreds of persons after reaching the dock. There was a detachment of U.S. marines, naval officers and scores of police.

Among the most interested spectators at the docks was a group of Filipino residents of Seattle.

When the President Grant was out in the Straits this afternoon turning to dock here, the pilot boat took out to her bouquets of flowers for Mrs. Garner and the other women in the party.

"This is an occasion of joy; we have looked forward to it, and let it also be an occasion to pledge anew that the United States shall remain free of any European or African war," said Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, majority leader of the Senate.

WASHINGTON TAX TOKENS INTEREST

Senator Duffy of Wisconsin, on the liner on the way over, talked of Washington State's tokens by which the state is collecting a sales tax. He said he was glad they would help the state pay its debt, but he felt they were making him familiar with Chinese money.

Other senators stressed the fact that the United States did not seek additional territory, and was glad to grant freedom to another people. They declared that the Orient was more vital than Ethiopia or such places. They said that United States hoped to have the Philippines as close friends and allies.

A possibility the Congressional party may study the coconut growers' problems in the islands was indicated by a message from the National Foreign Trade Council at New York to the party just before sailing. The council urged an investigation of effects on the 3-cent per pound excise tax on Philippine coconut oil levied under last year's law.

PAY RESPECTS TO EMPEROR

George H. Dern, United States Secretary of War, now in Japan, will join the party in Manila where he will represent President Roosevelt at President Quezon's inauguration, December 9. Word was received to-day, that accompanied by Edwin L. Neville, U.S. charge d'affaires at Tokio, Mr. Dern had yesterday been received by Emperor Hirohito of Japan. The Vice-President will likewise pay his respects to the Emperor.

The President Grant will touch Japan and China before proceeding to Manila. Every bit of passenger accommodation on the liner was taken for this trip.

Telegraph).—Reconnaisance flights disclosed to-day the army of Ras Seyoum, Ethiopian commander in north, apparently planned to make a stand along a line running from Alaji to Sakota, more than 100 miles south of Aduwa.

Italian fliers reported seeing deep trenches being dug, outposts being reinforced with concrete and machine guns erected.

By JAMES A. MILLS
Associated Press correspondent

Addis Ababa, Oct. 16.—Emperor Haile Selassie proclaimed to-day that Ethiopia is undefeated on any front, asserting Italian occupation of Aduwa and Aksum was without military significance, the Ethiopians having withdrawn for special strategic reasons.

The Emperor asserted the Fascists were permitted to enter these cities on the northern front unopposed, that no decisive battle had yet been fought and that none would be until the Italians should approach Ethiopia's real defensive positions in the towering mountains of the interior.

PREDICT TRAPS

Government authorities rejoiced to-day in a belief that Italy's northern army was slowly but surely falling into a trap.

Ethiopians said it would not be long before General Emilio de Bono's Fascist forces would find themselves lost in the maze of ravines, cavernous valleys and mountain fastnesses which form the northern bulwark of Emperor Haile Selassie's domain. Then the warriors of Ras Seyoum, commander in the north, would waste no time in carrying out a long cherished plan to attack.

SOMALILAND INVADED

Djibouti, French Somaliland, 5.50 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 15 (delayed in transmission).—Four thousand Ethiopian tribesmen, led by Colonel Siwiank, Dutch veteran of the Boer War, have invaded Italian Somaliland, and reported to-day an advance of forty-five miles.

Colonel Siwiank reported he and his men went into the Italian colony at Dolo, near the Kenya frontier, and had captured the town of Lugh.

It was Dolo the Italians claimed to have captured ten days ago.

TOWN OCCUPIED

A second and larger force of Ethiopians is crossing over the Italian Somaliland frontier midway between Teolo and the Webbe Shibeli River, occupying Oddur, about sixty-five miles south of the Ethiopian frontier.

Somali tribes were said to be joining the invaders in support of their old grievances against the Italians, which have been intensified by reports out of Ethiopia that non-combatants had suffered casualties through air bombing raids.

ON ITALIAN FLANK

An even greater menace than these two strong raiding parties against the Italian troops under General Graziani in Italian Somaliland was an advance by Ras Desta's army of 100,000 men down the valley of the Webbe Shibeli toward the left flank of the Italian army.

Graziani thus far has made his main thrust along the British Somaliland frontier to his north, but it has yielded him no additional ground.

WIDELY KNOWN

Siwiank is well known in Italian Somaliland, for he owns a great estate there. He long has been established as an opponent of Italian rule.

Graziani's tanks are still holding the bases southwest of Bohotlen, but the Ethiopians claim their infantry has taken the wells at Udi, driving back the mechanized Italian front and disabling three tanks.

Italian airplanes bombed Gertogubi again to-day, then dropped bombs on Grosa and Handamara and destroyed the radio station at Mudleh.

Dessie, Ethiopia, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press from Havas).—General headquarters for all Ethiopian defence forces will be established here under the direction of the War Minister, Ras Mulugheta, who plans an extensive campaign of instruction in modern war methods, it was learned to-day.

A havas dispatch from Cairo yesterday evening said tanks, bombing planes, munitions and artillery continued to arrive to-day from England, while British fleet units at Alexandria engaged in manoeuvres.

Conferences of Sir Miles Lampson, British High Commissioner, with the Egyptian high command, have resulted in sending British and Egyptian troops to the Libyan border.

Crack British infantry, machine gun units and artillery are being massed at Salum, at the very edge of Cyrenaica, on the Mediterranean Sea, as an advance guard. Matruh, in the same region, has taken on the aspect of a veritable wartime military base, with thousands of Egyptian troops under British command assembling with full fighting equipment.

Addis Ababa, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press from Havas).—Empress Menen of Ethiopia, it was learned here to-day, will visit the northern front with Ras Mulugheta, Ethiopian War Minister, accompanied by a Cuban officer as aide-de-camp.

Ottawa Conference In November Plan

MAIN POLICY OF B.C.

The collection of arguments and briefs dealing with the provincial case will take some time, of course, but Premier Pattullo months ago in his nine points laid down the main policy B.C. would pursue. This proposes redivision of jurisdiction, redefinition of taxation authority, a sales tax for the province, different adjustments on matters of health and marketing, and a general settlement of difficulties between Dominion and provincial authorities on governmental matters.

It is expected several cabinet ministers will accompany Premier Pattullo to the conference.

Finance Minister Rhodes, who did not contest a seat, was here throughout the campaign and is still here.

Two of the ministers who succeeded in retaining their seats, Hon. Hugh Stewart, Minister of Public Works, and Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State, arrived at their offices to-day. Others are expected soon.

Hon. Grote Stirling, Minister of National Defence, is expected to arrive from British Columbia early next week.

IN QUEBEC

Quebec's contribution to the overwhelming Liberal victory reached fifty-nine yesterday when the big northeast county of Pontiac was reported won by J. E. Piche, who resigned from the Quebec Legislature to contest the seat. Of these, fifty-six were official Liberal candidates, while the three others, no less keen Liberals, ran as Independent-Liberals.

With only one constituency still to send in its full returns—and that one leaning towards Liberalism—the Liberal Party to-day held nearly one-half of western Canada's seventy-one seats in the House of Commons.

Thirty-two prairie and British Columbia constituencies were in the Liberal column as a result of Monday's voting, and their political allies, the Liberal-Progressives, were victors in two other prairie constituencies.

SOURIS LIBERAL

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—A re-check today by the returning officer in Souris constituency showed George MacDonald the Liberal candidate, had apparently been elected by a majority of six over E. F. Willis, Conservative.

Complete figures yesterday of the results of Monday's voting in Manitoba riding were: Willis 4,507, MacDonald 4,506, A. H. Parkes (C.C.F.) 1,047, W. H. Glandenning (R) 613, Mr. Willis being conceded election by a majority of one.

The returning officer to-day was unable to give the revised, complete figures. Mr. Willis has not yet conceded Mr. MacDonald's election, and it was expected a recount will be requested.

If Mr. MacDonald's election is officially confirmed, the revised party standing in Manitoba will be: Liberals 12, Conservatives 1; Liberal-Progressives 2; C.C.F. 2.

VANCOUVER-BURRARD

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—While the final count in Vancouver-Burrard shows a Majority of ninety for Arnold Webster, C.C.F., over Mayor G. G. McGeer, Liberal, R. G. Phipps, returning officer, states the real story of the vote, in view of its closeness, lies sealed up in the ballot boxes.

The figures accompanying the boxes will be rechecked when they are opened on October 25 and a request for a recount of the votes themselves by one or other of the candidates within the prescribed four days after opening is regarded as a certainty.

Mr. Phipps stated the returns from the various polls had been taken over the telephone in the rush of election night and added up. He saw wide room for error in the taking of the figures by this means, but there is no way of checking the telephoned figures until the boxes are opened.

Camps of the two opposing candidates each make claims their man was elected.

Election agents of Mayor McGeer, basing their count on a check of certificates issued by Liberal scrutineers, claim the mayor was elected by anywhere from four to twenty-one votes.

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—A leader in the retail and manufacturing jewelry business in Winnipeg, D. Waverley Dingwall, fifty-four, was found dead in bed at his home here to-day. Death was due to a heart seizure.

Italian Forces in Northern Ethiopia Speed Construction as They Advance

By ANDRUE BERDING
Associated Press Correspondent

Aduwa, Ethiopia, 4.30 p.m., Oct. 14 (Delayed).—The high pressure of road construction to the present front lines permitted the Italian northern armies to-day to push their advance toward the more important objective of Makale. General Emilio de Bono, commander-in-chief of the Fascist forces in East Africa, left for field headquarters after receiving complete submission of the civil and religious authorities of Aksum, ancient capital and sacred city of Ethiopia.

This morning, I met one of the chief men of this town and my conversation with him gave evidence of the attitude of some proportion of the population of Aduwa.

"How do the people feel about the Italian occupation?" I asked.

ARMY IN MOUNTAINS

"Why didn't Ras Seyoum (Ethiopian commander in the north and Governor of Aduwa and the province of Tigre) put up a bigger fight?"

"Because he realized it was useless. The Italians had overwhelming numbers and materials."

The chieftain thereupon pointed to the mountains beyond Aduwa and said with pride:

"But he's there with a huge army now. He is very strong."

"Are you looking for a big battle sometime soon?"

JAPAN OFFICER ENDS HIS LIFE

W. Ota, on Military Mission to U.S., Hangs Self in Ship at San Pedro, Cal.

Los Angeles, Oct. 16.—The body of a man believed possibly to have been a high ranking officer in the Japanese army was found yesterday hanging in his stateroom aboard the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Taiyo Maru a few moments before the vessel was due to sail from Los Angeles Harbor.

He was identified as Waichi Ota, forty-one, of Nagoya, a Japanese military base. He carried a diplomatic passport and was listed as a military engineer.

Ota had attached a silk, braided cord to a support in his first-class stateroom and fashioned a noose with the other end.

The coroner's office said the body was placed ashore clad only in a suit of underwear with no papers or other identification accompanying it and the coroner was not informed of the death until a few minutes before the vessel sailed for San Francisco. All of Ota's effects, including his clothing, were retained by ship's officers and placed in the hands of the purser of the vessel.

The coroner will decide whether San Francisco authorities will be asked to impound Ota's effects when the Taiya Maru docks there at 8 a.m. Thursday.

The Japanese consul's office said Ota was in the United States on "government business," but did not give details.

ELECTION CLASH ENDS IN DEATH

Canadian Press

Windsor, N.S., Oct. 16. — Nova Scotia's one serious election fracas ended in death yesterday when Silas Blackburn, seventy-year-old recluse of the Lakelands settlement, lost a twenty-four-hour battle for life in a hospital here.

According to a signed statement of Albert Luton, who called for Blackburn Monday to drive him to a polling booth, the aged man met him at the door of his lonely cabin on the shore of Lake Cameron with a gun in one hand and a knife in the other. A struggle followed, in which the gun discharged and its bullet went through the chest of Blackburn at the base of his left lung. Luton was wounded in the wrist with the knife.

Blackburn and Luton were said to be on "bad terms." People of the district said the pair had quarreled several times before the tragedy.

GAS EXPLOSION

Montreal, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press).—It still happens. Pierre Lepine, twenty-nine, started to search for a gas leak with the help of a lighted candle. In the resultant explosion and fire he received serious burns about the face.

EXECUTION IN MONTANA

Canada Assured of Stable Government Following Liberal Victory in Monday's Election, Say Newspapers in United Kingdom

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 16. — Several newspapers remarked to-day on the defeat of new parties in commenting on the Canadian general election.

"The welcome result of the election is the rout of Socialists and cranks," said The London Daily Mail. "It is the signal of deliverance for Canada upon which she deserves the warmest congratulations.

"People here naturally regret the loss of Mr. Bennett (leader of the defeated Conservatives) but will rejoice, since there was to be a change, that power was passed into the hands of Mr. King (Liberal Leader Mackenzie King), a tried and trusted statesman. Between Canadian Liberals and Conservatives the difference is not great on imperial issues. Mr. King's majority will be well used."

The London News-Chronicle, under the caption "End of Bennettism," said: "Canadian Liberals are deeply committed to lowering tariffs and abolishing high protection which under the rule of Mr. Bennett hit the Canadian farmers so hard.

"If the British Government so desires—and it is a big if—it now has the chance to discuss with Mr. King what never could be discussed fruitfully with Mr. Bennett and to negotiate for the removal of the worst features of the Ottawa agreements, thereby reversing the fatal process of ring-fencing the British Empire."

"WILDCATS" GONE

"The wildcats and the freaks are sunk," exclaimed The London Express. "It is a fine tribute to the commonsense of these Dominion folk. Twenty-five years ago they banned alien immigration and stuck to Anglo-Saxon stock and 'kept the herd clean.' No nostrums or patent medicine cures for these voters, despite hard times."

LEVEL-HEADED

"Mr. King, we imagine, is unlikely to set out upon any pronounced departure in fiscal matters," remarked The Yorkshire Post. "A gratifying note is that the electors as a body have given the cold shoulder to fancy parties—pretty plain proof of Canada's level-headed political outlook. Mr. King in most ways is as sound an exponent of true imperialism as Mr. Bennett."

STABLE ADMINISTRATION

The London Times said:

"Mr. Mackenzie King may be congratulated on the emphatic victory. It assures Canada of five years of stable government and gives the Liberal party a full chance to test its remedies for the depression.

"Mr. King will be independent of sectional and provincial elements within his own party not fully sympathetic with his ideas on international trade. He has an arduous task, but also a great opportunity. Everyone hopes he will use it for the welfare of the great Dominion."

TEST IS FACED

The London Daily Herald said:

"Mr. Mackenzie King's record majority is at once an opportunity and a test. The new Prime Minister, like Mr. Bennett, recently, will be forced to the conclusion that none but radical measures will serve Canada's need to-day.

"In the international field the formation of a strong, stable administration at Ottawa is a great gain. We may confidently expect one of Mr. Mackenzie King's first acts will be a firm declaration of the new government's determination to stand by the covenant of the League of Nations and fulfil its obligations."

TRADE INCREASE

"The result seems to promise a return to less exciting and more steadfast politics," said The London Daily Telegraph. "It presages a reduced tariff and holds out strong hope of increased British exports of manufactured goods to Canada and comparable exports of Canadian foodstuffs to Britain.

"The Dominion must be congratulated on the verdict, which leaves nothing in doubt and arms the government under a premier of courage and experience with a powerful and homogeneous majority."

"The result confounded all the prophets," declared The London Morning Post. "Canadians evidently still prefer the choice between old allegiances and have given short shrift to upstarts. The electorate seems to have been influenced by similar considerations to those which operated in favor of Mr. Roosevelt. The average elector thought a change would do no harm and might do a great deal of good.

"The advent of Mr. King does not portend the abandonment of the Ottawa policy, though he may press for modifications, probably in the direction of lower tariffs."

POLLING CHARGES

Montreal, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press).—Aftermath of what was said to be a comparatively quiet election day, twenty-seven men and women were paraded through magistrate's court here yesterday on charges of assault, intimidation of voters, impersonation, attempted impersonation and trying to vote after disqualification. All pleaded not guilty and were remanded.

IMPERSONATION CHARGE

London, Ont., Oct. 16 (Canadian Press).—Charged with impersonation at a city polling booth during the Dominion election Monday, Morris Gootson, sixty, was allowed renewal of bail and an adjournment for eight days when he appeared in magistrate's court yesterday. Gootson was arrested at a polling both following a complaint of the returning officer.

Kentville, N.S., Oct. 16.—The Nova Scotia apple maggot control board, established in 1933, has the right to destroy orchards of all growers refusing to comply with regulations of the board, according to the decision to-day of Mr. Justice John Doull in the Nova Scotia Supreme Court.

Application of Frank A. Balsor of Spa Springs, N.S., who did not spray his trees, to have continued the interim injunction granted in Halifax last August restraining the board from cutting down trees in his orchard, was thrown out.

Scottish Names In New Commons

Canadian Press

Toronto, Oct. 16. — Those whose names come from the hills and glens of Scotland could form a good-sized bloc in Canada's next House of Commons. The new government comes in with twenty-nine "Macs" and "Mcs."

In addition there are representatives of the clans Cameron, Ross, Campbell, Stewart, Sinclair and Neill, and the total number of Scottish names will probably be around sixty.

MACDONALD FOR ADDED DEFENCES

Associated Press

Stockton-on-Tees, Durham, Eng., Oct. 16.—Former Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald declared in a speech here yesterday that Great Britain's reduction of armaments had gone too far and its defence equipment must therefore be "made good."

"The government has been examining its present capacity to keep the aggressor at arms length, should he appear," he said. "The conclusion has been reached that we have gone too far and have decided our defence equipment must be made good."

DEAN LEARNS OF PUBLICITY

Dr. H. Johnson Returning to England; Talked With Coughlin at Detroit

New York, Oct. 16. — Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, says he likes Rev. Father Charles Coughlin "fine" and that they are in "95 per cent agreement" on how national wealth should be distributed.

Dr. Johnson arrived here yesterday following a speaking tour in Canada. He will sail for England Thursday.

He met Father Coughlin for the first time a month ago in Detroit, and after hours of conversation, they composed a joint statement setting forth their views stressing "Christian principles."

"I learned a very powerful publicity technique from Father Coughlin," the Canterbury dean said. "In England I have been trying to find a radio station, but they are all controlled by the government and won't permit time to broadcast."

"If socialization of credit is not soon brought about, Fascism is inevitable, even in England," said the dean. "A boiling up of peoples by economic pressure creates dictators who must repress them, and inevitably engage them in war."

MOSLEYITES IN BATTLE

Canadian Press from Havas

Reading, Eng., Oct. 16. — Rioting broke up a meeting of Sir Oswald Mosley's black-shirt Fascists here when it was invaded by Communists yesterday evening.

Police had to escort the Fascists from the hall to protect them from a crowd of several thousand Communist sympathizers waiting outside.

The disorder began as the meeting was nearing its close and the Fascists rose to sing their hymn. Seeing a group of Communists in the rear of the hall who remained seated, they set on them and the meeting turned into a free-for-all fight.

Police who came to quiet the disturbance had to send for reinforcements to help protect the Fascists from the crowd outside.

MME. LUPESCU IN ROUMANIA

Surprises People By Returning From France on King Carol's Birthday

Associated Press

Sinai, Roumania, Oct. 16. — Mme. Magda Lupescu, intimate friend of King Carol, surprised and dismayed her opponents to-day by returning from France to Roumania in time for observance of King Carol's forty-second birthday. She remained in seclusion.

Her sudden return confused National Peasant Party leaders, who were in the midst of an "anti-Lupescu drive," and her return was regarded in some quarters as a definite challenge to those opposing her power behind the government scenes.

Premier Nicolas Titulescu denied persistent reports that Carol's engagement to some princess would be announced soon—possibly to-day.

TOLL OF QUAKE MORE THAN 100

Moscow, Oct. 16.—The death toll of the Tovil-Dorinsky earthquake on October 5 reached 107, it was learned yesterday when communications were restored. The injured totaled 360.

Twenty - one successive shocks leveled the villages of Mioadu and Argankugh, principal inhabited points of the region, near the border of Afghanistan.

Aviators flew over the zone and reported yesterday that the formation of mountains had been altered by the quake and that steep banks of the River Obkhingu had caved in for a considerable distance.

VICTORIA TO-DAY IS HAPPY TO BE host to distinguished visitors from the neighboring republic. The party, which includes the Vice-President of the United States, many Senators and Congressmen, newspaperman and their wives, is fully representative of the forty-eight states of the union. Victoria, of course, is only a stop-over point in the itinerary of our visitors, who are bound for Manila to attend the inauguration of Manuel Quezon as first president of the Philippine Commonwealth, which is about to start upon what is described as a ten-year preparation programme for the complete independence of the islands.

At the last session of Congress, it will be recalled, the necessary legislation was passed to give the Philippines an opportunity to run their own affairs, with the proviso that, for a few years, the people of the islands would consent to the guidance of the United States. All reports published about Manuel Quezon seem to be unanimous that under the changed regime he will direct with wisdom the business of the people with whom he seems to be popular.

The reversal of self-government to the Philippines implies that the republic feels that its possession of the islands has been in the nature of a trust, that it wants no white man's burdens abroad in permanence, that it has enough territory to administer and enough people whose needs require attention without coveting any more. It was impossible, of course, for President Roosevelt to head the mission on this historic occasion, but he has selected as chief of the delegation the Vice-President, Hon. John Nance Garner, who for the first time brings this city into personal contact with a high executive of the great republic. President Harding visited Vancouver on his return from Alaska in 1923, and some presidents, and, no doubt, vice-presidents, have been in Seattle, but none ever has enjoyed the hospitality of Victoria up to this time.

The visiting Congressmen, like the newspaper representatives who are accompanying them, are not confined in political allegiance to one party. They include straight Democrats and Republicans as well as qualified supporters of both sides. Among them, for example, is a prominent Progressive-Republican who, we recall, headed the committee of the Senate which conducted a searching investigation into the munitions industry, and who subsequently delivered a speech over the radio which in its recital of the activities of the international armament trust amazed his listeners in both Canada and the United States. There are many other notable public men in the party whose names are familiar to our readers.

There is some parallel between the extension of self-government to the Philippines and the evolution of the Britannic Commonwealth. Canada, which was won by the sword, has become a completely self-governing Dominion enjoying equal status with Great Britain and the other Dominions. So have Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Irish Free State. A similar process is under way in India. There is a difference, however, in the circumstance that eventually the Philippines will be given complete independence and that in the meantime the President at Manila will be under the guidance of a commissioner appointed by Washington, whereas the British Dominions will remain within the world-encircling commonwealth owing allegiance to a common sovereign who constitutes the real institutional bond between them. It is clear, however, that in all cases under the institutions which prevail in both the British Commonwealth and the Republic, recognition of the right of self-government, which implies the widest measure of liberty under an orderly democracy, is a cardinal, determining principle. It is hoped that our visitors will spend the few hours allotted to them in Victoria pleasantly and profitably.

MR. PATTULLO AND VANCOUVER SUN

THE VANCOUVER SUN VENOMOUSLY blames the Pattullo government for the large vote polled by the elements allied to Socialism in the election on Monday, and winds up a vicious tirade, marked by personal animosity in every line, with a demand for the immediate resignation of the Premier.

Just why Premier Pattullo should resign because the C.C.F. candidates polled a large vote in an election campaign which was to determine whether the Bennett government or the Liberal party should be returned on strictly federal issues, must be a profound mystery to everybody but The Sun.

It is true that the C.C.F. polled a big vote, about 89,000, but the group polled more than 120,000 in the last provincial election, before the Pattullo government was in office, and when The Sun was making a desperate effort to put it there. The C.C.F. vote in Ontario was 112,000, against 11,000 in British Columbia, but even the most rabid party newspaper in that province would not squirt a personal barrage at Premier Hepburn and demand his resignation on that account.

British Columbia probably will have as many representatives in the House of Commons this time as it elected in 1930, before Mr. Pattullo was in power.

In 1926, although the Liberal Party and its affiliations won by a substantial majority in Canada, British Columbia returned only one follower of Mr. King—and the Pattullo government was not in office here.

In 1925 British Columbia elected three Liberals—and the Pattullo government was not in power here.

In 1921, when the Liberals won by a big majority in Canada, British Columbia elected but three supporters of Mr. King—and the Pattullo government was not in power here.

In no federal election since 1904 has British Columbia sent more than five Liberals to Ottawa, the average being three, and in some instances there was none—and the Pattullo government did not assume office until November, 1933.

Not very long ago The Sun in similar vein demanded the resignation of Mr. Mackenzie King as leader of the Liberal party, and the reproduction of that fantastic outbreak by various candidates and newspapers during the recent campaign in deadly parallel with its current pre-election eulogies, must have been something of a handicap for the Liberal candidates.

The very last thing Premier Pattullo, or any other self-respecting leader, would do would be to resign because an embittered newspaper demanded his resignation, and the inevitable outcome of The Sun's attack will be to cement the Liberal representation in the Legislature more firmly than ever behind its head. Abuse of that kind invariably implies a complimentary tribute to its target.

INTIMIDATION

LAST SATURDAY NIGHT MR. MACkenzie King commented scathingly on the threat of a creamery magnate in Renfrew, Ontario, that if the Liberals were elected he would close down his plant and his employees would lose their jobs. He pointed out that the employer by this form of intimidation had rendered himself liable to prosecution and severe penalties under the law, and warned him that if he closed his plant a Liberal government would take it over, and discover just how much tariff protection it needed. Mr. King also declared that this and other similar incidents, would be searchingly investigated, and appropriate action taken in every case.

The sequel to the threat of the Renfrew employer, who is a man of vast wealth, was the election of the Liberal candidate by a large majority, just as the sequel to the government's attempt to influence the electors in some constituencies by public works, and the farmers by wheat payments, was the defeat of Conservative candidates in all but forty-one ridings out of 245 throughout the country.

A PASSING PHASE

FROM LONDON COMES THE SUGGESTION that some rather venomous attacks in the French press, questioning Britain's good faith in pressing collective sanctions against Italy in the hope of stopping the war in Ethiopia, is a section of the French press which "notoriously is in the pay of Italy."

After all, however, the most influential French newspapers are in sympathy with the sentiments which all liberal-minded newspapers of Great Britain express. It is realized in France, as it is realized in all the countries of the British Commonwealth of Nations, that war settles nothing—but unsettles everything.

The French press, it may be recalled by those who were born in the latter part of the nineteenth century, made some very nasty remarks about Great Britain—one or two cartoons were not complimentary to Queen Victoria—but there came a day when old scores were forgotten and troops from Great Britain and the rest of the empire died by hundreds of thousands on French soil.

France and the British Commonwealth of Nations will be doing business "at the old stand"—peacefully—after Il Duce has been forgotten.

AMALGAMATION SQUELCHED

DURING THE LAST FIVE YEARS there has been a persistent attempt at Ottawa to set the stage for the amalgamation of the two chief transportation systems of the country under private control. Sir Henry Thornton was driven out of the presidency of the Canadian National Railways, and eventually to his grave. The Duff Commission was appointed in the expectation that it would recommend such a merger, but it reported adversely on the scheme and Parliament passed legislation reorganizing the system but prohibiting any amalgamation.

Nevertheless, the campaign continued more or less under cover except for the intensive public activities of the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. Any counter-stroke by the trustees or executive officers of the Canadian National Railways was frowned upon by Mr. Bennett. The deficits of the national road were emphasized at Ottawa on all occasions, and in not a few instances there was downright misrepresentation of the facts. More than all this, the system was crippled in its operation in many ways, and there is little doubt that if the government had been given another term the Canadian National would have been handed over to the C.P.R.—with the public holding the bag. It was to bring this scheme to fruition that a national government was proposed.

The result of the general election puts an end to all this log-rolling. The Canadian National Railways will receive fair treatment and it will remain the property and under the control of the Canadian people, who by their unprecedented vote have given an emphatic mandate to Mr. Mackenzie King to adhere to his policy in this respect.

The electors evidently did not share Mr. Bennett's devotion to Section 98 of the Criminal Code which reverses every principle of British justice in the sense that it requires persons accused of its violation to prove themselves innocent instead of the Crown being required to prove them guilty.

GRANDMA RESENTS MODERN PRACTICE

"Would you like to hold the baby?" said the nurse to Grandma Brown,
And, oh, the nurse was pretty in her spotless cap and gown!
But when Grandma took our darling and began to fondle it,
The nurse in indignation screamed: "A kiss we don't permit."

"I merely pressed my cheek to hers," said Grandma Brown in rage.
The nurse's voice was icy as she answered: "Be your age!
Who knows what germ diseases now are lurking on your cheek?"
Which made Grandma Brown so angry that she couldn't even speak.

"The baby can't be handled. Now I told you that before!"
And then she snatched her from her arms and grandma's cheeks grew red.
Nor would it now be nice to tell what Grandma thought or said.

"I wonder," Grandma later said indignantly to me:
"Just how they think I managed to bring up my babies three.
I kissed them and I rocked them and I fondled night and day,

DISTINGUISHED VIEWS

WITH GREAT EXPENSE and difficulty, this column has collected the views of people who really matter on the recent federal election. They are recorded here verbatim, without partisan comment from me.

Mrs. Noggins: "Well, I see they went and helected King. Soon as I 'eard on the radio that King 'ad got all them votes in the East, I said to my old man right away, I said: 'If King gets as many votes in the West,' I said, 'then 'e's in.' It was plain to me as a mud fence 'e'd get in when 'e won all them constitchencies. After that, wot chance did Bennett 'ave?

"Well, I 'ope the country likes the Liberals now they got 'em, with their lazy fare. I'm still agin it, but it don't do to say these things too loud, do it? Our road is fixed now but it'll need some more work on it next fall I don't misdoubt, and it don't do a body any good to be talkin' about the gover'mint—not when it's jest new hanyways.

"I done wot I told you I would. I was afeerd of the Liberals and I didn't like Bennett and the C.C.F. would take yer 'ouse and furniture away from you. I wasn't goin' to be no party to helecting any of them, so I figgered the only safe thing to do was to vote Reconstruction because they 'ad no chancet of gettin' in. Well, thank the Lord, I done it an' I was right. They didn't get in so nobody can 'old me responsible fer wot 'appens in the next four years. If things goes wrong do you spose the voters round 'ere will blame themselves? Not much, they won't. They'll blame the new gover'mint same as they blamed the last wot they helected themselves. But they can't blame me. Me 'ands is clean. I voted fer the party that 'ad no chancet.

"Well, my boy—'e's a plumber, you know and C.C.F.—'e told me wot 'ad 'appened in the helection. 'Wot beat the C.C.F.,' my boy says, 'is that the Liberals was too strong in the East and in the West. If we'd only bin a little stronger in the East and the West, we'd of 'ad 'em,' my boy says. 'Yus,' I says, 'if you'd bin stronger, your C.C.F. would of 'ad my 'ouse and furniture and my chickens, too; that's wot you'd of 'ad.' 'We'll get it next time,' he says. 'By next time, if times don't get better,' I says, 'I won't 'ave no 'ouse ner furniture ner chickens to get,' I says. Well, good mornin', sir, we're 'opin' to buy a bit of a car, you know, when King cuts the juties on 'em. Thank God, sir, I'm Reconstruction. Nobody can blame me."

SOMETHING HAPPENED

THE NEXT PERSON interviewed was Mr. H——, a leading merchant of Victoria, prominent in public organizations for many years. He was interviewed at the corner of Broad and Fort, while watching The Times bulletins on election night. Mr. H— said: "I knew something was going to happen to-day. I felt it in my bones. All day long I've been saying to myself, 'Some thing is happening in Canada to-day.'"

This column also interviewed Mr. George Pudbury, chairman of the local Conservative committee, whose duty it was to get the faithful Conservative voters (if any) out to the polls. Mr. Pudbury, as a Conservative chieftain, took the defeat of his party philosophically. Speaking as a man who has never surrendered his Conservative principles (and has usually managed to wangle the odd political job as poll clerk or census taker), Mr. Pudbury said:

"It's as plain as day what happened in the election. Most of the people just put their party above their country, that's all. That's the only way you can explain the Liberal vote. Where did it come from otherwise? People jest voted for the Liberals and forgot all about the country. It's this party stuff that's ruinin' the country. They had their chance to get behind Bennett and the country but they wasn't big enough fur that. They voted fur a party instead of their country. Well, they can take the consekences as fur as I'm concerned. An' I bet Bennett won't raise a finger to stop the Liberals goin' into power and doin' their damndest. I don't blame him if he don't do nothin' to stop 'em, after what the people did on election day.

"Of course," said Mr. Pudbury, "it's them Frenchies in Kebeck. They don't know nothin' about politics and they allus vote Liberal because they don't know no better. I tell you, this country will never get anywheres till us Canajians get rid of them furriners."

I ventured to observe that the French had been Canadians 300 years before we were, to which Mr. Pudbury replied: "You allus was a Liberal, er a Red er a Communist er somethin'. All right, you wait. Bennett ain't goin' to pull you fellers out of this jam in a hurry."

LARGE BET

A GENTLEMAN formerly distinguished in politics and once a leading Conservative member of the Legislature had offered to bet me $50 two days before the election that the Bennett Government would be sustained. Not wishing to engage in immoral gambling, I offered to bet $25. He said he felt he didn't want to take that much away from me and said he would compromise on a friendly bet of twenty-five cents.

He came around just now and paid this large sum without a whimper, adding: "I knew we were licked, of course. But one has to cover these bets just to keep up the spirit of the boys, you know. If it got around that I wouldn't bet on the party, it would be demoralizing, of course. But I'm not surprised at the result and after these good times we've been having we'll just have to make up our minds to face another depression, I suppose. But, as a financial man, I'd rather have King in than the Communists, I'll tell you frankly, and I don't care who know it."

SHUT FROM EVIL

"WELL," said the little girl from next door as I drove her to school to-day, "they got the election over, eh? (Keep the door of my lips shut from evyl)—that's the text we have to memorize to-day). Well, Mr. Pudbury said the King hadn't got enough sense to come out of the rain, but he got in, didn't he? (Keep the door of my lips shut from evyll). But why did he have to get in, that's what I can't make out? Why was the King out in the rain, that's what I want to know? I thought he had a palace all to himself. (Keep the door of my lips shut from evyll).

"It's about time they let him in, after all this rain we've been having, and it's getting frosty at night, too. And Mr. Pudbury says they put Bennett out. Where will he go now, poor man? There's some cottages up at the lake that nobody is using in the winter time. He could sneak into one of them, maybe, until he could get a job and buy a house of his own. (Voo-lay-voo du lay? Do you want some milk. That's our French for to-day. Keep the door of my lips shut from evyll).

"Well, anyway, it serves Bennett right, because Mr. Beak says he eats boys and girls. I wouldn't have minded if he'd eaten my brother this morning when he scribbled all over my book but I've forgiven him now and pulled the eyes out of his teddy bear. (Keep the door of my lips shut from evyll. Voo-lay-voo du lay?) Mr. Beak says the King will fix everything up. I told my brother when he cried about his teddy bear that he could let the King fix it up for him. I hope he fixes up my school, too, so they don't have any more subtraction sums. (Voo-lay-voo du lay?) But this election business is all phooey, anyway. I don't even believe in Santy Claus any more. (Keep the door of my lips shut from evyll)."

Leave to address the mayor and aldermen and city officials at the next meeting of the public works committee was granted to Walter Inward by the City Council yesterday evening.

Re-establishment of the McCarter Shingle Mill at its former location was authorized by the City Council at its meeting yesterday evening. The application for rebuilding was supported by the city fire chief and building inspector. Reconstruction will cost about $3,000.

FRIENDLY HELP WELFARE ASSOCIATION

To the Editor:—A good many questions have been asked about the changes that have recently taken place in the work of the Friendly Help Welfare Association. As has been the case in almost every other city of any size, it was found impossible last spring to continue, from voluntary contributions, to provide clothing for the families of unemployed men. Although the cost of this service has been kept as low as possible by the use of second-hand clothing, it ran up to $1,500 or $2,000 per month, exclusive of all administration costs. We appealed to the City Council, who decided to handle clothing from the city's own relief office and who, at our request, took over from us one or two other relief services.

At the present time we are offering services to families and individuals who have encountered difficulties too great for them to solve alone. When strained relations develop between members of a family, we can often help by providing a sympathetic, experienced listener who will respect confidences, who will not take sides, and who will not jump to conclusions. Sometimes one or two interviews are all that is necessary, but often our services are needed for longer periods, sometimes even for years. Helping to budget a depleted family income, assisting a father with the care of his children while the mother is ill or away, studying a child whose behavior is worrying his parents, are some of the services which we offer to any families in Greater Victoria who desire our help. In every case we work in close co-operation with other organizations so as to avoid duplication of effort.

Unemployment relief is provided for by the public relief departments of the city and municipalities and therefore does not come within our scope. On the other hand we often find it necessary, in the course of working out a plan with a family in trouble, to give a certain amount of financial assistance, clothing and household equipment. For this purpose we have allotted a certain proportion of our budget to relief. It may interest your readers to know that we have, for the time being, reduced our staff and our budget to the lowest possible figure, but that the scope of the work will be enlarged when this seems to be necessary and when funds permit.

We are anxious that the public shall know about our work and are glad to answer any questions about it at any time. Collections for funds will be made from those interested, and donations of cash, clothing and household equipment will be welcomed at Welfare House, 1234 Pandora Avenue. Surplus clothing is being given to the City of Victoria for distribution among families of unemployed men, and this policy will be followed in the future.

F. E. WINSLOW,
President, Friendly Help Welfare Association.

APPRECIATION

HEROIC POLICE

To the Editor:—Is there not some way of publicly and nationally honoring the four police officers who were murdered by the gangster gunmen in Saskatchewan and Alberta?

It was remarked to me that soon "True Detective Story" magazine will come out with a thrilling account of the whole affair.

Why cannot the school children all over Canada observe at their schools a two-minute silence when these men are laid to rest? Harrison, Wallace, Shaw and Wainwright are names they should learn to remember, instead of having the other three indelibly impressed on their memories as "tough guys." Remember we become like those whom we dwell upon in mind. What we contemplate we imitate!

The lives and exploits of the policemen might be broadcast to good purpose also, when anything of this kind happens. A good many of our police officers have been shot to death in the last decade, but most of us have forgotten who they were!

(Mrs.) OLWEN RODSTROM.
R.M.D. 3, Victoria, October 12.

MILITARY SANCTIONS

To the Editor:—In reply to Mr. Averill's letter in to-day's issue, I regret that I suggested in my communication of the 9th inst. that he desired prayer for peace through the success of the policy of military sanctions. I am glad to learn that I was mistaken, but I thought it was distinctly implied in his communication of the 28th ult. His statement that it is not an un-Christian act for a policeman to even shoot a gunman who, if not shot, may probably shoot several innocent people, and that military sanctions are not war but police duty, does not contain a fair parallel. Space does not permit an analysis of this argument, but I would point out that in Vancouver and certain

WOULD CHECK FALSE ALARMS

Council Offers Reward For Conviction of Jokesters Causing Useless Runs

A reward of $25 will be given to any person furnishing information leading to the conviction of anyone turning in a false alarm to Victoria fire department, as the result of action taken by the City Council yesterday evening.

The matter was raised in a recommendation included in the fire wardens' report.

Alderman Walter Luney, chairman of the board, spoke to the motion, stating that since July 21 eighteen false fire alarms had been turned in.

In addition to causing the fire department great inconvenience, Alderman Luney pointed to the many dangers attached to the practice, which he presumed was being adopted by thrill-seeking youngsters.

Every time the department went out it placed from $40,000 to $50,000 worth of equipment on the streets. Its presence on the roadway represented a possible accident hazard not only to the equipment and firemen, but to pedestrian and vehicular traffic. Further, the alderman noted, if the department were called out to respond to a call in Victoria West and a fire broke out in a distant part of the city, the loss through the waste of time would probably be very high. He dealt with the costs of making runs, stating since July 21 the sum total of expenses caused through false alarms was $200.

The council approved the plan to pay the reward.

Meeting Vice-president and Mrs. Garner was comparatively easy. It was necessary to show credentials, to be met in the corridor of the tenth floor of the New Washington Hotel and talk to his secretary and then pass a naval aide, in uniform, who introduced scores of people to the distinguished visitors during the day.

JUST TALKS OF THINGS

In the sitting-room of a modest suite sat the vice-president, the second man of this great republic, and his wife. He rose to greet us, shook hands and asked us to sit down.

There was no formality.

The room was a mass of rosebuds, sent by Republicans and Democrats alike.

They all like John Garner, apparently.

The vice-president talked about all sorts of things, but placidly refused to be drawn into a political discussion. He talked as he might to one of his neighbors down in Texas. He told us a little about himself, and some of his peculiarities. He said he kept a barber in Portland up last night because he figured he needed a shave. He was a bit bristly, he said. He went on to say he never shaved himself. He talked about his younger days on his father's ranch in Texas.

"I never saw a railroad in my life until I was fourteen, if you can believe that," he said.

THAT NINETY-EIGHT-CENT WATCH

Mr. Garner showed us the watch that he bought recently for ninety-eight cents. It was reported at the time that he was going to Japan to show his watch to the people there and explain to them that the United States could also compete in the cheap labor market. Questioned about that, he again turned aside the subject. He never heard of such a thing, he said.

"That's very interesting," said Mr. Garner to a reported statement that he would discuss trade when he was in Japan. I'm going to Manila, you know."

FIRST VISIT IN TWENTY YEARS

He did say, however, that he was looking forward to being in Victoria. He had not been in Canada for about twenty years, he said, and that was near Niagara Falls, when he went up from Washington on some government business.

He said Canada would one day be able to support a great many more people, just as would the northwest of the United States. He did not amplify the statement, but switched the topic of conversation back to his early days in Texas when he received the nickname of "Cactus Jack."

It was rather difficult to believe we were talking to so important a person as the Vice-President of the United States. He was much easier to see and much easier to talk to than many political and business men of far less importance. He made you feel right at home, just as if he were enjoying the talk as much as anyone. He was not the least hurried, and appeared not a bit tired, although he had gone through a civic reception in the morning and had received batteries of newspapermen and photographers, as well as Democrats galore and quite a few Republicans.

"I NEVER SAY ANYTHING"

"But I never say anything," he repeated. "I spoke this morning and I will speak over the radio again tomorrow morning, but I won't say anything."

Mrs. Garner showed great interest in Victoria, and said she was looking forward to her visit there. She said she was fond of gardening and would like to see Mr. Butchart's gardens if there was time.

About 7.45 o'clock the Vice-President and his wife, the latter looking more the well-dressed wife of a prosperous business man than one of the leaders in Washington's official society and a great personal friend of Eleanor Roosevelt, went into their private dining-room for dinner. After that the Vice-President retired, as he has a busy programme for to-morrow. There was a large public reception on the pier this morning before the President Grant sailed for Victoria.

Money Offered States Witness

SAYS IT IS TRUTH

"They said you can't help your brothers, they are already dead," Edwards testified. "Now what I say is the truth."

He declared the police wanted him to say the Indians had fought first with the officers and then the gun went off.

The offer, he said, was made to him through Indian interpreter Albert Sterling and present on the occasion were Detective Sergeant W. A. MacBrayne and two provincial constables.

Sterling was put in the witness box and under cross-examination swore there had never been any offer of $500 while he was present.

TO PROTECT TAX ARREARS

In an effort to avoid tax default on an industrial property, which might leave the City Council without any means of redress for outstanding arrears, the council, at its meeting yesterday evening, passed a resolution covering properties which could not be sold at tax sale.

In debate around the question, it was pointed out certain industrial properties could not be taken over in the event of tax defaults, since some of the land, including that in the Industrial Reserve, could not be claimed by the city.

The resolution passed was as follows:

"That the assessor and collector be instructed to submit particulars of all taxes in arrears on properties which cannot be sold for non-payment of taxes."

GOLDSTREAM COSTS GIVEN

City Council Informed of Expenditures at Park; Work Is Commended

Replies to questions regarding expenditures on Goldstream Park and tearoom at yesterday's meeting of the City Council brought forth commendation for Alderman T. W. C. Hawkins and the committee in charge of that project.

D. A. Macdonald, city comptroller-treasurer, reported the sum total for materials and labor listed against the park and tearoom amounted to $5,909, including $1,039 for material for the tearoom and living quarters.

The labor costs were listed at $1,379.60 on that project and labor and material for the park were set at an expenditure of $3,506.36.

Alderman Hawkins, to correct an impression arising from the report, stated the total costs of $5,909 had not been borne entirely by the city, 60 per cent of the labor being carried by the government. On that basis the whole project had cost the city but $3,394.86.

LUNEY STATES STAND

"I had no intention of criticizing the expenditure, but I wished to show how easy it is to keep spending money outside of the city when I think the same expenditure in the city would do more good for more people," Alderman Walter Luney stated in explaining his reason for requesting the report. He had no objection to the tearoom when it was outlined as a summer project, but when it was made a year round proposition, with the present tenant living there for twelve months, he thought extra expenditures incurred were too much.

Alderman Hawkins stated the money the city had spent there gave the city a permanent caretaker who would protect the building.

He asked Alderman Luney what it would cost to make the fills required in Goldstream Park, stating it would run to about a dollar a yard, including costs for material, loading and spreading.

BIG ASSISTANCE

Through the assistance of the government the city had succeeded in carrying on work which would have cost between $7,000 and $8,000 had it been done by Victoria alone.

Alderman Alex Peden paid tribute to the first class job done at Goldstream and was joined in his praise by Alderman John Worthington and Alderman Andrew McGavin.

Alderman Luney warned the committee in charge of Goldstream to make provision to avert damage to the city investment through possible floods.

Better Light Moves Carried

Strenuous efforts at the last council meeting to have better lighting facilities on certain Victoria streets met with some success at the City Council session yesterday evening as that board approved various recommendations put forward by the electric light committee.

The committee recommended that every other tree on Manor Road should be removed before further lighting for that street should be considered. The matter was referred to the parks committee for a report.

A new light was authorized for the corner of Pemberton Road and Forbes Street and for the corner of Alston and Langford Streets.

A request for a light at the corner of Richmond Road and Despard Avenue, the installation of which will cost approximately $100, was referred to the 1936 council.

Lights will be placed on Oscar and McKenzie Streets in the blocks between Moss Street and Linden Avenue and consideration will be given to pruning or removing certain trees on Rockland Avenue, south of Oak Bay Avenue before any new lights are installed there. The council, on the committee's recommendation, approved the purchase of a spare automatic traffic signal at a cost of $180 for use in case of emergency.

GARBAGE CRUSHER PLAN TOO COSTLY

The question of costs virtually killed a proposal brought in by Alderman Walter Luney several months ago to institute a crusher system to smash solid garbage in such a way that it would not float back onto the beaches. Yesterday evening the City Council received and filed a report on the matter from G. M. Irwin, city engineer.

Mr. Irwin stated a crusher would cost in the neighborhood of $7,000 and $8,000, and its efficiency would be questionable.

The council did, however, take some action on another report stressing the need for repair work to the city's garbage wharf at a cost of $1,397. The itemized requirements for the repair of the wharf were read and the matter was referred to the executive of the public works committee, the building inspector and the city engineer with power to act.

Jail Term For Chinese Driver

Edward Lore Sentenced to Two Months For Failing to Return to Accident

Edward Lore, Chinese, convicted of failing to return to the scene of an accident on the Island Highway in which Mrs. E. Burnham, Thetis Lake Road, and her two children were injured and sent to hospital, was sentenced to two months' imprisonment in the Provincial Police Court yesterday.

In giving judgment Magistrate Jay made it clear that persons undertaking the hiring of drive yourself cars are responsible for them in case of accident, whether they are driving or not.

In this case defence counsel, M. B. Jackson, K.C., had contended his client was not driving the car but that a woman companion was at the wheel. The accused, he had argued, was intoxicated and the girl had taken charge of the machine. Counsel said he would appeal to a higher court on a writ of habeas corpus.

The court reviewed the evidence of the accused's visits to several beer parlors with his companion. He pointed out the contract which the accused signed when he hired the car prohibited him from becoming intoxicated or allowing anyone else to drive the car.

SPECIFIC WORDING

The magistrate referred to other sections of the Motor Vehicle Act which held as liable the "person driving or operating" the car. In the section under which this charge was laid, however, the onus was upon the person "in charge" of the car.

This clause was obviously inserted in order that a person suffering damage in an accident should be permitted to know who was to be responsible on the other side. The magistrate cited the instance of a liveried chauffeur driving for an owner as an example of this. In such a case, the owner and not the chauffeur would be liable.

Sergeant Richard Harvey prosecuted.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

No man, probably, has as many memorials erected to his memory in the western hemisphere as has Christopher Columbus. But the distinction of being the first country to honor the discoverer of America by a statue goes to Mexico.

In the middle of the beautiful Paseo de la Reforma, the tree-lined boulevard in Mexico city which extends two miles to the Hill of Chapultepec, stands the first statue to Columbus.

The statue represents Columbus drawing aside the veil that hid the New World. Around its base are figures of famous Mexicans and Spaniards, one of whom is the distinguished Spanish Dominican friar, Bartolome de las Casas who defended the Mexican Indians against their cruel conquerors.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the South Saanich United Church was held at the home of Mrs. H. C. Rose, East Saanich Road, on Thursday afternoon.

Arrangements were made to hold a sale of work in the church parlor Thursday, November 13.

Mrs. L. Hafer Sr. will have charge of a home-cooking stall and Mrs. H. C. Rose will look after the needlework stall. There will also be a candy and grab-bag table and afternoon tea will be served.

The monthly meeting of the South Saanich Women's Institute will be held in the Temperance Hall tomorrow afternoon.

E. M. White of the Department of Agriculture will address the members of the South Saanich Farmers' Institute at their monthly meeting in the Temperance Hall, Thursday evening.

The City Council yesterday evening adopted the proposed grade for Bowker Creek suggested by the intermunicipal committee following its recent meeting on that matter. The grade was drawn up by the engineers of the city, Oak Bay and Saanich.

NEW SECRETARY FOR FIRE CHIEF

Matthew McConnell, formerly of the city treasurer's department, was appointed secretary to the fire chief by the City Council yesterday evening. He succeeds W. Simpson, whose resignation was accepted at the meeting.

Prior to making the appointment the council discussed in some detail its legality and was informed by the fire wardens and the city comptroller it was quite in order. He will officially occupy his new post from October 31.

A request from Joseph Rose asking the city to illuminate his clock on Government Street was declined by the City Council yesterday evening on the grounds furnishing of light for that purpose was beyond the province of the city.

"Why, half of 'em at least is yours, Miss Elaine. I mean it's always been that way. Finish off your breakfast and we'll go up and see what's there."

The "storeroom" proved to be one of the big, unused bedrooms on the second floor. It was in a state of riotous disorder, but the smell of moth balls attested to Penny's struggle to keep the room free of those particular pests. The old woman pointed to an immense carton of heavy cardboard. "That's the box, Miss Elaine."

As she opened it, Ruth fell on her knees with a cry of delight. Penny said, "You'll recognize your own clothes. Maybe they're a little out of style, to your way of thinkin', but they'll do fine."

There were two evening dresses on top. One was shell-pink velvet, the other was cream-colored lace. "Oh-h!" breathed Ruth, and held them up in front of her. The velvet, she saw, was cut with a deep back decollete. The lace frock had puffed sleeves, a tiny round collar and brilliant buttons down the front of the tight bodice. It was torn a bit in the flounce, but half an hour with a careful needle would restore it. Ruth caressed the pretty things with trembling hands.

"Here's a coat," said Penny, dragging out a woolen garment and casting it aside. "You don't need that—"

"Don't I!" said Ruth in a tight voice. She saw that it was a blue winter sport suit with three-quarter length coat and a round, trickily cut, grey fur collar. In the box were two contrasting skirts to go with it and several smart sweaters. The sweaters needed only a tender dousing in soap flakes and a few skilful stitches to make them perfect again. "Handmade!" Ruth thought rapturously.

Penny said, "I reckon it's warmer than the suit you've got with you. This pretty weather won't hardly last."

"I can use it nicely," Ruth replied quietly.

"That's good," Penny replied. They explored deeper. There was a winter coat of black material, conservatively cut and collared with black fox, which Ruth persuaded Penny to take as her own. There was nothing else, however, that the old woman wanted since she always wore "plain black," she said, and had a chest full of things already that she had accumulated from "Miss Gwen's boxes."

Ruth found an exciting dress of dark blue crepe which she felt sure had been Elaine's. It had a monk's hood collar, a silk rope belt and the most wickedly alluring sleeves imaginable. There was the faint odor of an exotic perfume clinging to it. . . Ruth thought, "I'll wear this for John—" and her heart skipped three beats.

In the bottom of the box were a few pieces of lingerie, several small felt hats, an evening coat of brown velvet, and three pairs of shoes. "This is lucky, too," said Ruth. The gold evening slippers were hardly scuffed at all; the walking oxfords were worn but still shapely; the severe black pumps (minus one buckle, but otherwise perfect) were all a girl's heart could desire. Their size, six double A, did not dismay Ruth; her own trim foot was only slightly shorter.

"Penny," she said, gathering up her chosen clothes as Cinderella might have done before the ball, "let charity fall where it will—"

"What say, Miss Elaine?" asked Penny, getting up stiffly. But already she had forgotten the girl's queerly spoken words. "This room needs tidying up," she remarked. "I hope you won't tell your stepfather how I let things go. I don't want to be pensioned off." Again that look of apprehension—and something else. Could it be craft?

Ruth was too happy to wonder.

CHAPTER XII

Ruth spent the day entertaining Penny. That is to say, she listened to Penny and she talked to Penny. She was well rewarded. There was the knowledge that she made the lonely, half-blind old woman happy, and there was the useful information she gleamed in regard to Elaine's family.

Elaine's father, she learned from Penny's rambling tales, was an admirable young man who was killed in the World War. (Ruth thought, "At least Elaine Chalmers and I have that in common—our brave fathers whom we can't remember.") Elaine's mother, "Miss Gwen," eventually married a second time. The man was an old suitor, Higate Deal, of Wall Street fame.

In speaking of Deal, Penny hinted dark things. "He's ruinin' your grandpa's railroad. Now that he's got hold of it they don't pay the stockholders around here like they used to. I hear reports—" She stopped, as if afraid she had said too much.

Ruth, in turn, invented interesting accounts of Elaine's life in the east. "I was at a wonderful house party last summer, Penny—" and she told glamorous details without a twinkle of conscience. She knew that she was feeding Penny's starved imagination and making her temporarily happy. What else was there to offer for birthday diversion?

"I won a swimming event at Newport, Penny!" "At Saranac one time I was skiing and took an awful tumble. The young man who picked me up afterward proposed to me, but mother and Mr. Deal didn't approve, so nothing came of it."

"Maybe he didn't have enough money," remarked Penny with a faint snort. Any mention of Higate Deal seemed to throw her into a suppressed rage.

Ruth led her to talk of "Grandfather Hunter," the old railroad king. "There was a man for you!" Penny declared. Six-foot-two. White hair piled on his head like a corn shock. A nose like an eagle's beak. He spoiled his children—your mother and Uncle Duncan—somethin' awful, but he never spoiled himself. He let 'em go east to school and do as they pleased. But he always said the state of Ohio was good enough for him. Folks around here still talk about Si Hunter. If they knew you was in town, his only grandchild, they'd likely write a piece about you in the paper."

"Penny," exclaimed Ruth in real panic, "if anything like that happens I'll leave town! I—I hate publicity!" She made Penny take a solemn oath that she would tell no one of her presence.

"I wouldn't anyway," Penny explained. "I keep to myself. People pry. There's lots of things I'd die before I'd tell 'em!" She peered around her defiantly, as if holding the whole town at bay.

"Yes, Penny," said Ruth soothingly, and patted her arm. "Would you mind if I'd go for a ride with John McNeill before supper? He asked me this morning."

Penny relaxed. "Do go, Miss Elaine. It'll do you good. Only be sure to put on that warmer suit. It's turned chilly with the rain."

Ruth and John McNeill were both ten minutes early for their appointment. Ruth answered the door when he rang and said, "I meant to keep you waiting. This childish eagerness of mine is going to ruin you."

"I'm easily spoiled," John replied as he helped her into the low-swung roadster which was parked before the porch.

"For instance, that kiss precedent. Couldn't we do it—once, say, every time we meet?"

"Why should we?" Ruth asked in a cool, aloof voice.

"Why?" repeated John McNeill slowly, starting his car and pondering the question. "I was hoping you'd just want to, Elaine. The way I do. My mistake—"

He swung the car out of the circling driveway onto the street, and immediately assumed a more impersonal attitude. "You said the country, I believe. Well, we're on the edge of town now. You're about to see something very choice in rustic scenery."

Ruth said, "I suppose you'll tell me this is the garden spot of the world—finest soil, finest crops, finest climate, finest everything." (Her heart was saying, "Little fool, you chilled him by your priggishness! Why shouldn't you kiss when you meet? Aren't you supposed to be lifelong friends?")

"I could tell you plenty about this town," replied John. "Only I'm afraid it might sound presumptuous to an easterner."

"We New Yorkers do feel superior," Ruth agreed. (She was thinking, "Dear Lord in heaven, what have I to feel superior about? I, a tramp. A nobody. A piece of driftwood!")

He slowed the car to point out a rambling brick house with an avenue of trees leading to it. He said, "You recall that place, of course. The Phillipses still live there. Lucy's at Vassar now. I guess you see her sometimes in New York?"

"It's funny," Ruth answered. "I never do. Has she changed much?"

"Not as much as you have," John McNeill said.

He offered her a cigarette which she took, hoping she was not too awkward at catching the light he offered her. Elaine, she felt, would smoke under the circumstances.

He said, looking at her until the match burned his fingers, "You look lovely to-day. Mind my telling you?"

"Mind? I like it. But we'll have to give credit to the clothes. I've always liked this suit. It's more flattering than the little rag I arrived in."

"When I first saw you," John remarked, "you were the dimpest little piece of wreckage I ever laid eyes on. It was a first-class faint, if I ever saw one."

"What a way to enter your life after an eight-year absence!" Ruth mourned. "At my very worst."

"At your very most impressive," he disagreed. "I've met several hundred perfectly turned out girls in my day, and promptly forgot 'em. I never before picked up one that looked like a wet dish-rag fallen off the line, and, five minutes later, saw her turn into a thing of beauty right under my nose."

"Did you realize who I was?" Ruth asked curiously.

He said, "Until Penny started calling you 'Miss Elaine' it never entered my head that you were anything but a little nobody trying to find a dry spot."

"Oh—" said Ruth. "These elms are gorgeous. Like—like New England, aren't they?"

"Have you forgotten this is the Western Reserve?" John asked. "Your ancestors and mine who helped settle it came from those states. Got their land grants for being good Revolutionary soldiers. They held on to the old New England customs—white frame houses, elm-lined roads, maple sugar groves. All that sort of thing."

"I'd forgotten," Ruth replied.

SAM HARDY, ACTOR, DIES

Associated Press

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 16. — Sam Hardy, veteran actor of the stage and screen, died in the Hollywood Hospital early to-day after an emergency operation for an abdominal ailment.

The fifty-two-year-old player, best known for his humorous gambler-type portrayals, collapsed on a studio set yesterday as he was making up for scenes in an Eddie Cantor picture.

Cantor and Norman Taurog, the director, rushed him to the hospital, where it was decided to operate for an intestinal obstruction.

As a result of his collapse and death, Samuel Goldwyn, the producer, said much of the Cantor picture completed so far would be scrapped, because Hardy had appeared in most of the scenes.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

USE COMMON SENSE IN CLOTHING CHILD IN WINTER

The nagging of relatives, more often than the seriousness of a problem itself, may drive the parent distracted. Relatives have an almost universal distaste for seeing their families do anything original. A mother, aunt, or married cousin with older children, feels complete satisfaction only when her own opinions are vindicated by someone else subscribing to and following them.

Adults who get their satisfactions this way should take themselves firmly in hand and ask themselves, "Am I or am I not grown up?" There is a serious question of their maturity if they cannot see some one act contrary to their advice without being upset and angered by it.

MORE CLOTHES

"I am nearly frantic because of my relatives insistent advice. I lived with them all last winter and my mother and cousin nagged me constantly to put more clothes on my baby; and my aunt and her family wanted me to shorten her undies and put socks on her! Do write something about dressing children in winter that I can show to them.

"Our house is rather inadequately heated to about 60 degrees. My baby had pneumonia at fourteen months—hence my mother's insistence that she needs more clothing—but now she is healthy, sturdy and brown and seems warm. Do you approve of children wearing woolen panties and a sweater in the house? I loathe long stockings on children as they never stay in place nor do they look neat with the short dresses they wear. Please discuss this."

COTTON NOT WOOL

In a house heated to 70 degrees or better the average active, well child can be dressed in a cotton union suit, or cotton shirt and panties, petticoat and dress, or a matching dress and panty outfit, over the cotton underwear. A sweater in early morning may be worn if necessary and heavy clothes (sweater, leggings, coat and cap) out of doors. Short socks may be heavy. Bare knees offer the child of two years no special discomfort and I agree that long stockings are usually very untidy looking

LET TEMPERATURE BE GUIDE

In your case I'd adjust this to your house, for 60 degrees is an uncomfortably low temperature. A heavy weight cotton union suit with short legs plus a jersey dress and the petticoat would be none too much, and a sweater might be necessary at some hours. I'd guide yourself by your own feelings and note how many garments are needed to keep you comfortable. We have a leaflet on, "Dressing Children in the Winter Time," which you may have for a self addressed, stamped envelope sent to Myrtle Meyer Eldred of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

To-morrow: "Routine Is Essential to Baby's Day."

Co-eds Less Brainy Than Chorus Girls

Associated Press

Kansas City, Oct. 16. — Many a glamorous chorus girl has a higher intelligence quotient that the average college graduate, Albert Edward Wiggam, psychologist, said to-day—but she does not have enough children.

"As a result," Wiggam asserted, this country is losing in brains and beauty.

"The very gorgeous young women who should be producing beautiful, intelligent children have not time for motherhood because they are in demand at night clubs, before the movie camera and on the stage."

Using Salt In Place Of Paper Lining Of Cake Pans

COMFORT THEIR GOAL

Two attractive costumes that increase interest in football from a woman's point of view. The one at the left includes a smart brown plaid tweed coat with raccoon collar over a brown tweed suit with vivid orange Ascot. The other (right) consists of grey kid swagger coat and a red, blue and white plaid dress with knitted Ascot in harmonizing tones.

SHAKESPEARE PLAY ON AIR TO-MORROW

A full-hour radio adaptation of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" will be heard to-morrow during a Radio Guild broadcast over an NBC coast-to-coast network at 1.30 p.m., P.S.T. KPO heads western stations releasing the one-hour drama.

CONGRATULATIONS TO MR. KING

London, Oct. 16.—Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, former Liberal leader and war-time Prime Minister of Great Britain, yesterday telegraphed to Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King his congratulations on the "amazing triumph" of the Liberal Party in the Canadian general election.

PLAIN PLAID

One of the handsomest costumes seen around the paddock at fashionable Belmont Park, L.I., was worn by Mrs. Deering Howe. It includes a plain two-piece suit, topped by a double-breasted plaid topcoat.

There is a revival of carved wood rooms—panels of birds and plants for the library and walls for the game room that are inscribed with the family pursuing their various sports.

AGED HUNTER IS MISSING

Rangers Search in California; Fruit Losses Caused By Storm

Associated Press

San Francisco, Oct. 16.—While forest rangers sought a missing seventy-six-year-old hunter in the wilds near Lassen Volcanic National Park, California farmers to-day dolefully checked damage wrought by the first severe storm of the fall.

The missing man was Amos J. Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Calif., banker and father of Josephine Cruickshank, feminine tennis star. He disappeared Sunday while hunting with several companions.

Forest rangers said the only clue to the aged man's whereabouts was a report that shots were heard on the east side of Brokeoff Mountain, about two miles from the point where Cruickshank was last seen by Civilian Conservation Corps workers. Heavy snow, brought by the storm, has impeded progress of the search.

LIGHTNING CASUALTY

A man was killed by lightning yesterday. He was Pete Mulas, fifty-five, a sheepherder, who was struck by a bolt near Robbins, Cutter County.

Heavy damage to raisin, grape and cotton crops in northern California was reported by agriculturists.

Lightning flashed and thunder rumbled over San Francisco yesterday for the first time in several years as the storm brought .59-inch of rain, making a total of 1.12 inches for two days. A minor fire was started when lightning struck a telephone pole.

Automobiles were submerged and passengers forced to scramble for safety when a near cloudburst flooded a section of highway at Red Bluff.

BELIEVES IN PREVENTION

Toronto, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press). —Trainer George Stockwell of the Toronto Argonauts "Big Four" rugby football club is a firm believer that prevention is better than cure. In three years, the club players have not had an ankle injury and he believes it due to the fact that the ankles have been taped before every practice and game. So far this season, 600 yards of white adhesive and 300 pounds of black tape have been used.

GIRL GRIDDER INJURED

Denver, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press).—Zelma Shumate, seventeen, stopped to watch a sand-lot football game. She volunteered to join one of the teams and was dubiously accepted. A few minutes later Zelma was hospital-bound in an ambulance with a fractured ankle.

Removing Stubborn Caps From Bottles

To remove a tightly screwed-on bottle cap twist a large rubber band around it. It usually gives enough "traction" to do the trick. Another method, if the cap is of thin metal, is to heat it slightly with a match. It will expand to unscrew easily.

Wood alcohol acts on the blood vessels and causes hemorrhages. It often destroys the tiny arteries of the retina of the eye, causing blindness.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

CHANGE WAYS VEGETABLES ARE SERVED OFTEN

By MARY E. DAGUE

Upon the sales ability of the cook and her ingenuity hangs the problem of whether or not her family gets the proper amount and variety of vegetables. There are tricks in all trades and the cook must resort to many. When the doctor prescribes disagreeable medicine, he sugar-coats it. That is what the cook must do, figuratively speaking.

Here are a few hints for making vegetables popular. If they are that kind, cut them invitingly and serve raw like radishes. In this list come carrots, turnips, kohl-rabi, cauliflower hearts and beets.

MIX WITH CELERY AND NUTS

Shredded and mixed with celery and nuts or even with fruits for salad, you can get away with a lot of vegetables that would be refused if served straight.

Careless cooking is the reason for the unpopularity of many vegetables. Boiled just right, according to the kind of vegetable, and served hot with plenty of butter, almost all vegetables are palatable.

An unpopular vegetable served in combination with one that everybody likes is a good plan—carrots and peas, for instance.

Appetitizingly browned in butter or French fried in deep fat, even parsnips could go to the top of the class—and baking is another aid.

Also you may disguise them in meat stews, pot roasts and soups.

Souffles, scallops and casseroles offer unlimited possibilities.

CAN BE USED IN DESSERTS, TOO

Then, of course, there are marmalade and butters where you use carrots and tomatoes, and vegetable sandwiches with peanut butter or mayonnaise. Garnishes and cocktails you have already thought of, no doubt. But how about puddings, cookies, cakes and breads made with vegetable juice or finely chopped vegetables?

TO-MORROW'S MENU

HAS BIG VICTORY

A. W. NEILL,

who was again returned as Independent member for Comox-Alberni in the election on Monday. With a few polls yet to hear from Mr. Neill polled a vote within approximately three hundred of the total vote recorded for his four opponents.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ravin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blosts up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c. ©1931, C. M. Co.

Juveniles Enjoy Fine Programme

The first meeting of the fall season of the Juvenile Musical Arts was held Saturday in the New Thought Hall, Fort Street. Owing to the absence of the president, Miss Julia Kent-Jones, the meeting was opened by Mrs. C. W. Bradshaw.

As the roll was called by the secretary each member responded by reading some short statement of musical interest. Members who took part in the programme were: Isabel Chisholm, piano solo, "Csardas"; Joy Groves reciting "Only Seven," Joyce Bailey, piano solo, "Snowdrop," and Alice Tourtelotte, piano solo, "Child's Waltz."

Mr. Ian Galliford, pianist, was the guest artist of the afternoon. The story of "Nutcracker and the Mouse King" was told by Mrs. Gough preceding Mr. Galliford's playing selections from Tchaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite," entitled (a) "March," (b) "Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy," (c) "Prussian Dance," (d) "Dance of the Reed Pipes." A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Galliford.

After the meeting games were played and refreshments were enjoyed

Old-time Dance Drew Big Crowd

Another large crowd of around 180 guests attended the old-time dance held at Lake Hill on Saturday and thoroughly enjoyed the old-time music provided by Irvine's orchestra. Two main events of the evening were the spot dance and serpentine dance, while Slim Hunter, Leo Holden and Roger Perullet entertained with songs and instrumental numbers, many of which were encored many times.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR HERE TO-DAY

Mrs. John N. Garner, wife of the vice-president of the United States, who accompanied her husband and a party of members of the U.S. Senate to Victoria to-day.

Is Working Woman First, Says Mrs. John N. Garner

Wife of U.S. Vice-president, Here To-day, Still Husband's Secretary; at Desk Before 7.30 Daily

Ranking in her own country as "the second lady in the land," Mrs. Ettie Garner, who accompanied her husband, John Nance Garner, Vice-President of the United States, to Victoria to-day, is refreshingly free of anything savoring of the political grande dame attitude. In fact she boasts that she is first and foremost a working woman.

"JUST PLAIN FOLKS"

In reminiscent vein she recalled to a reporter the days when "we were just plain, ordinary folk, with no frills and no money to hire help. Oh, we had bread, but we just forgot about the butter in those days."

That was in the days when Mr. Garner was a struggling young lawyer just elected to Congress. Mrs. Garner became her husband's secretary when her son Tully was five years old, and she still remains his chief secretary.

And that it is no sinecure, this self-imposed job, is evident. When at home she is always at her desk before 7.30 in the morning.

"We find we have to have most of the mail out of the way by 8.30, because Mr. Garner's day is pretty well taken up with other affairs. Of course, I dictate many of the letters to a clerk, just as he used to dictate them to me, but when there's any question to be decided I leave it to him. I know all about being on the job early," she said with a twinkle in her blue eyes.

HAD ONLY ONE EVENING GOWN

While social obligations must of necessity have their place in her busy scheme of things, Mrs. Garner admits that they are not of primary importance to her. She recalls the time when her husband first became Vice-President of the United States, when she had only one evening dress, a black lace one which she wore when she and "Catcus Jack," as he is affectionately known, were guests at White House, and laughingly admitted that not long before that she had none at all.

FLOWERS FROM CONSUL

On her arrival at the wharf, Mrs. Garner was wearing the corsage bouquet of exquisite orchids, presented to her by the American consul-general here, Hon. Theodore Jaeckel.

The bouquet, together with a similar one for Mrs. Joseph W. Byrns, wife of the Speaker who is with the party, was sent out to the U.S. President Grant on the pilot boat—a graceful little welcome which was greatly appreciated by the ladies.

During her brief stay here, Mrs. Garner accompanied the party to Government House to make formal calls on His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. J. W. Fordham Johnson, and later enjoyed a drive around the city and environments. She will be among the guests at the dinner this evening at the Empress Hotel.

Sherwood W.M.S.—The Sherwood W.M.S. will hold a thank-offering meeting to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Belmont United Church. Rev. C. Borup will speak and a special musical programme is being arranged.

Weddings

COATES-BROWNE—LITTLE

Of much interest to the local friends of the bridegroom is the following item from The Winnipeg Tribune of Saturday, October 5:

Coates-Browne of Winnipeg and Victoria, took place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Fort William, on Saturday, September 28.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. Johnston. Only relatives of the bride and bridegroom were present. Dr. and Mrs. Coates-Browne will reside in the Arlington Apartments, Fort William.

Dr. Little and Dr. Coates-Browne were on the staff of the Children's Hospital, Winnipeg, previous to Dr. Coates-Browne going to Fort William about two years ago."

THOMSON—McKAY

A wedding of interest to friends in Victoria took place on Monday afternoon at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, New Westminster, with Rev. J. S. Henderson, D.D., officiating, when Jean Isobel, younger daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. G. McKay, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Henry Thomson of Victoria, second son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Thomson of Burnaby.

The ceremony was performed in a setting of autumn flowers arranged by friends of the bride. The bride is affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma Fraternity and was a former student of the University of British Columbia and a graduate of McDonald College at St. Ann de Bellevue.

A smartly-tailored suit frock of rose cloth was worn by the bride. The sleeves were close fitting and other details of the dress were in harmony with their simple lines. Her brimmed hat was of stitched navy silk taffeta finished with a white buckle, and she carried a Colonial bouquet of pale pink rosebuds. Dr. McKay gave his daughter in marriage. Best man was Mr. George Thomson, brother of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomson left immediately for a honeymoon in the south, during which they will motor to California. The bride donned a seal fur coat over her wedding dress. They will reside in Victoria.

C.G.I.T. WILL HEAR LEADER

Miss Anne Fountain, B.A., of Vancouver, provincial girls' work secretary, was the guest of the Victoria C.G.I.T. Leaders' Council at their regular monthly meeting held yesterday evening at the home of the president, Miss Lilian Parfitt, 2663 Fernwood Road.

In an informal manner Miss Fountain discussed the work of the church in general and the Canadian Girls in Training movement in particular with the leaders. She also discussed the presentation of the programme of missionary education in the groups, emphasizing the change of attitude and methods with regard to the work.

During the business period a report of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the visit of Miss Evelyn Craw on November 14 was presented by the chairman, Miss Olive Lynn. It was announced that a supper conference for leaders would be held at 6 p.m. at the City Temple and that the girls and leaders rally which would be held at 7.30 p.m. in the City Temple would be sponsored by the leaders' council in conjunction with the girls' council.

It was announced that the annual meeting of the girls' council would be held on Saturday, October 19, at 6 p.m., in the Y.W.C.A. The meeting will take the form of a supper meeting at which one councillor from each group and the department presidents will attend.

Miss Nellie Cameron was appointed as assistant secretary in view of the amount of work which is now in the hands of the secretary-treasurer. Miss Cameron will carry on the work of the C.G.I.T. column in the week-end paper and it is requested that leaders and girls send their news items to her at 2734 Avebury Avenue, instead of to Miss Olive Lynn, the secretary-treasurer.

Following the business period a devotional was presented by Miss Nellie Cameron, followed by an informal discussion led by Miss Fountain. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess.

PRESENTATION IS MADE TO COUPLE

In recognition of fourteen years of service with the Canadian Immigration Department, Mr. and Mrs. John Earnshaw were yesterday feted by the local staff of the department.

They had held the positions of caretaker and matron of the Immigration Building in the Outer Wharf district for almost a decade and a half, and retired on Monday of this week.

F. W. Taylor of Vancouver, district commissioner of the department, attended the ceremony and spoke briefly in appreciation of the services of Mr. and Mrs. Earnshaw.

HOLLYWOOD DANCE

The Margaret Jenkins School auditorium will again be the scene of another one of Hollywood club's popular semi-monthly "Three Hours of Pleasure" dances this Friday night. The usual four-piece orchestra will play the latest in modern dance hits, and the music will start promptly at 7 p.m.

A tombola for dance passes has been chosen as the feature for this dance. Although the many different types of dance contests featured at past dances proved very popular and entertaining, there are always a certain number of dancers who seem shy at participating or being watched by the onlookers, therefore some of the more difficult contests are rather closed to some dancers of this nature. However, the tombola to be featured Friday night will be open to everyone present.

LADIES' NIGHT FOR KIWANIS

Club Members Show Knowledge of Feminine Fashions in Contest

Six Victoria Kiwanians last night qualified in varying degrees as experts on the subject of feminine fashions. Timidly they stood before a court of their peers and described the dresses worn by their wives, who had retired into the next room.

The occasion was the first ladies' night of the season, held by the club in Spencer's dining-room, and the six defendents were Victor King, Walter Walker, Atwill King, Donald McAdie, Fred McGregor and Ken Ferguson. Rowan Mackenzie, president of the club, was judge, and Sam Clack clerk of the court, prosecutor and official stenographer.

The descriptions of the dresses ranged in accuracy from that of Fred McGregor, who stoutly asserted first that the color of Mrs. McGregor's dress was green, then that it was pink, when actually it was blue, to that of Walter Walker, who became quite technical in a masterly handling of pique, ruffles, rolled collars and the rest.

Appreciation of the work of the ladies on behalf of the club was expressed by Mr. Mackenzie, who referred to such activities as the Y.M.C.A. teas and the telephone bridges organized by them. These events, he said, had srved to raise a considerable sum of money.

Following the dinner the members and the ladies adjourned into the rest room to play progressive bridge.

What One Girl Wore

By BETTY BROWNLEE

One of the really amazing things about this season's frocks is the strikingly new and original color combinations which are featured. Gaiety is the keynote of the present mode and as far as color is concerned, contrast is the thing and the more unuusual it is, the better.

If someone told you a year ago that a grand idea would be to combine deep red with pale blue or red with pink or violet and red, you probably would have kept your opinion to yourself, but most likely you would have thought the idea slightly mad.

But it's all come true. The most unlikely colors have been blended this season. Perhaps it was the linen vogue that started it all, for the most sensational tone combinations were first observed in the smart little linen suits and frocks that descended upon us with the first breath of spring. However, the idea has spread and unusual color schemes are now observed in dresses and suits of cotton and silk.

The most natural outlet for the unusual in color scheme is, of course, in the field of sports clothes, and two-tone combinations of striking contrast are the last word.

To-day we illustrate a smart little golf dress which, while not bizarre in its colors, is typical of the mode which stresses definite contrast.

It is of a soft washable crepe in lemon yellow and uses bright red for the kerchief, belt and buttons. The red is that shade which has a slightly orange cast, increasing its vividness. Nice detail is to be found in the four patch pockets and the self-piping which accents its tailored effect.

KING CAROL MAY MARRY

Reported Engagement to European Princess Persists Despite Denial

Bucharest, Oct. 16. — Diplomatic circles were agitated to-day by the report that the engagement of King Carol to a European princess would be announced at the monarch's birthday party to-day.

The reports were completely without verification, and responsible officials refused to discuss them, but they persisted in foreign legations.

Politicians opposing the ruling regime were obviously perplexed by the new turn of events which had suddenly removed Mme. Magda Lupescu, the king's friend, from the scene.

Duncan Church Bazaar Success

Duncan.—The ladies of St. Edward's Altar Society held their annual bazaar in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Duncan, on Saturday afternoon. The room presented an exceptionally charming appearance, decorated with Michaelmas daisies in pale shades, and pink dahlias, the work of Mrs. H. P. Swan, the president.

Plants and cut flowers were sold by Father Latour, cooked food by Mrs. O. C. Brown and Mrs. A. Rey; "Wool Art" by Mrs. Douglas-Forbes and Mrs. F. Considine, and a "mystery" stall in charge of Mrs. C. deC. Johnson and Miss Agnes Brown. Mrs. Carberry had charge of a hamper full of good things which was won by Mrs. Hector Marsh. Mrs. A. Martinich won the picture and Mrs. R. Tait the cot cover. Mrs. Slee sold the tea tickets, the lucky one going to Miss Agnes Weicker. Mrs. Tait had charge of the tea tables and waitresses and Mrs. W. R. Russell had charge of the tea arrangements, assisted by Misses Rita and Blanche Weicker, Miss Betty Russell, Mrs. F. McKenney, Miss Betty McCann and others.

Loyalty and Progress In Old Country Impressive

Dr. J. S. Plaskett Tells Women's Canadian Club of Wonderful Jubilee Scenes; Trade Rapidly Recovering

The overwhelming demonstration of loyalty to the King and Queen as manifested during the Silver Jubilee celebrations in London was the outstanding impression retained by Dr. J. S. Plaskett of his five months' stay in Great Britain.

So he told an audience of about 500 members of the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon at the Crystal Garden auditorium when, in a humorous and informal address, he recounted some of his impressions of the Old Country, where he declared he had never heard the word "depression" mentioned.

Dr. Plaskett briefly described the trip through the Panama Canal, recalling the stormy passage on the latter part of the voyage. While in Great Britain, Dr. and Mrs. Plaskett and his son had motored 4,000 miles in England and Scotland, "the most pleasant way of seeing this most beautiful country."

Describing conditions in England as very hopeful, the speaker expressed the opinion that the Old Country had broken the back of the depression quicker than in the majority of other countries. He touched briefly on the balancing of the budget, the recent reduction in the very heavy rates of taxation of incomes, motor-cars, and also observed that the heavy salary cuts imposed on civil servants during the depression had been restored.

The phenomenal activity in building was another evidence of returning prosperity, Dr. Plaskett observed. In this connection the speaker touched upon the many societies interested in the preserving of the amenities of the English countryside, threatened by the growing tide of housing schemes.

JUBILEE IMPRESSIVE

The Silver Jubilee celebrations made a great impression on Dr. Plaskett. He was particularly impressed by the loyalty of the people, the excellence of the traffic and other arrangements, and the magnificent decorations throughout London. All the principal streets were closed to vehicular traffic from 8 till 12 midnight for Jubilee week, the streets being thronged with orderly crowds, not one drunken roisterer being seen by the speaker during the whole celebration.

Summing up his impressions of the Jubilee, the speaker said: "It made one proud to be a Britisher."

VISITED PARIS

Reference was also made to their trip to Paris for the triennial conference of the International Astronomers' Union. Fifteen or twenty different languages were spoken by the various representatives at this congress of astronomers, said Dr. Plaskett, and he admired the linguistic abilities of some of the foreign delegates, especially the Swedish and Dutch, the majority of whom were familiar with five languages.

Interesting excursions included those to the sevres porcelain works and to the Gobelins tapestries, as well as to the various historic spots in the neighborhood of Paris.

Dr. Plaskett's interesting talk was made even more vivid by his series of excellent slides of London scenes, including several of the Royal Jubilee procession. Views of the cathedrals at Chichester, Winchester, Durham, Canterbury, Salisbury, Wells, York, Gloucester, Exeter, Ely, Lincoln and Bath Abbey were thrown on the screen, together with glimpses of Edinburgh and Balmoral Castle, Scotland.

MUSICAL NUMBERS

Miss Evelyn Harper, pianiste, delighted the gathering with her brilliant rendering of the Liszt Etude in D flat, and a Chopin waltz. Mrs. S. J. Willis presided, and Mrs. Harold Campbell gracefully thanked the speaker and artist on behalf of the club.

Letters of appreciation from Phyllis Awmack and Pearl Smith, the two high school winners, this year, of the Women's Canadian Club annual bursaries of $100, were read by Mrs. Willis at the meeting.

LACK OF APPRECIATION DRIVES CHILD TO RUN AWAY FROM HOME

They called her "Bligy" at home, short for belligerent, and this is why.

Take last Saturday, for instance. Marjorie's mother got up with a headache. The night before she had eaten a piece of chocolate cake when going to bed.

"Mother, if you eat that you'll be sick as sure as you live," Bligy had warned her. "And to-morrow you have to take Roger to the dentist's."

But her mother merely said: "I'm hungry. I wish you would stop borrowing trouble, my dear."

So Bligy took Roger to the dentist, and he bit and screamed and said he was going to tell on her when he got home because she smacked him and called him a little coward. Roger did tell with embellishments, and his mother, whose headache was better, said, "You haven't a grain of sympathy in your whole body, Bligy. Some day something will hurt you, and you'll howl loud enough."

UNFOUNDED COMPLAINTS

Bligy learned then that her mother had asked the Weekses over to dinner. She knew what that meant. China and glasses to be washed and silver to polish. Without a word she got at them, went out and cut flowers and then was ready for errands. The Exchange was out of lady-fingers so she got macaroons. "I wish you had called me,' complained mother, "because I'd have had something else besides blanc mange. You mustn't make all my decisions for me."

While she was gone, Gerty mooned around in her room. "Mama," whined Gerty, when Bligy arrived, "I think she's hiding something. Her bureau drawers are all locked. It's that Jack Porter. I bet he sends her notes. She's stuck on Jack Porter."

"If you weren't such a little prowl cat I wouldn't have to lock things up," said her big sister. "Go and wash your face. Mother, make her clean up. She's never clean. She is worse than Roger.'

'Some of your friends must be coming. I know the signs," sighed mother. "You never have any time for us."

INCONSIDERATE FATHER

Father arived home and chose the living-room sofa instead of the upstairs couch to have his nap. "Dad, if you don't mind," suggested Bligy, "would you nap upstairs? Some of the boys and girls said they might stop in."

"I'm comfortable, Miss Bossy," yawned dad, and went to sleep. It was a cold day but the crowd sat out on the porch. Jack suggested a sundae. "I'm going out for an hour, mother," said Bligy.

"What? And leave me with all the things to get ready? I call that pretty cold-blooded. My headache's coming back, too."

But Bligy went. At 5 o'clock she was back, quietly and efficiently systematizing the dinner. She fed the children first, ate something herself and took them off to an early movie to get them out of the road. She did not see much of the show. Her seventeen-year-old eyes were looking far beyond. Next morning she decided she would tell them she was going away to get a job. Away. Away. Her eyes filled but she knew it had to be. Sometime, anyway. And she knew they would say, "What a strange, ungrateful child you are. Leaving a good home and love and care for a bare room and starvation."

LOW BUS FARES FOR HOLIDAYS

Vancouver Island Coach Lines Announce Reduced Rates For Thanksgiving

Special excursion return fares for the Thanksgiving holiday to all points on Vancouver Island have been announced by the Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

The excursion rate of single fare and a quarter for the return will be effective from noon on Wednesday, October 23, until midnight Thursday, October 24. The final return limit is midnight Friday October 25.

The regular low week-end rate of single fare and a quarter for the return, good going from Friday noon until Sunday midnight, with a final return limit on the following midnight, will be effective every week-end as usual.

It is expected that a large number of residents will take advantage of the holiday excursion rates to visit friends and relatives on the island for the festive occasion. Would-be passengers are requested to make their reservations early, either by phone or by calling at the Broughton Street Depot.

A fine of three shillings is imposed on brides in Halberstadt, Germany, if they arrive for the wedding ceremony more than a quarter of an hour late.

In the time of the Ptolemies, Egptians were so violently opposed to red hair that they burned a red-haired maiden once a year.

SOCIETY WOMEN TAKE TO WOOL COATS AND FURS IN BRISK AIR

The costumes of these three brilliant lights of New York society give a good idea of the variety of styles favored by smartly-dressed women. Left to right are Barbara Wall, pert in a Scotch cap and coat with exaggerated lapels; Mrs. William Farnell in a dark collarless coat of rough weave and an off-the-face hat, and Mrs. Harold Wall in a coat that is an example of the vogue for pleated shoulders and wide revers.

"Queen of the Holy Rosary" was the hymn sung very sweetly by the girls, followed by a paper on "St. Teresa of Avila," one of the saints whose memory is foremost in the minds of Roman Catholics during the month of October, read by Ella Hood. Carman's "Angels of Man," was read by Victoria Ebbs-Canavan. Muriel Franklin accompanied at the piano by Betty Hemmingsen, then played a beautiful violin solo, "Nocturne" (Gronon).

"God's Troubadour," a paper based on the life and work of St. Francis of Assisi, was read by Helen McDonald, and "God's Little Flower," the life of St. Teresa, by Patricia Beasley. June Byron read two poems, "Scattering Flowers" and "God's Troubadour." "Will o' the Wisp" (Jungman) was much appreciated as a piano solo. Frances Condon read a paper, "The Feast of Christ the King" and a poem, "The Jubilee of Redemption."

THREE MAKE LAND; GIRL IS MISSING

Canadian Press

Catalone, N.S., Oct. 16.—After a wild night at sea, two men and a woman reached land to-day in a battered motorboat that had started out into a northeast gale more than twelve hours before with four persons aboard.

Ethel Martell, fifteen-year-old daughter of the lightkeeper on lonely Flint Island had drowned while her sister-in-law and brothers watched after waves had capsized the motorboat in the darkness.

The Martells—Wilkie, twenty-two, the bride he won by correspondence only a few weeks ago, and Kenneth, eighteen—were on the way to Flint Island from Port Morien when wind of near-hurricane strength capsized the boat.

WAR RISK RATES ON ITALIAN LINE

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—War risk insurance on shipments by vessels of the Italian Libera Line to any destination is available from the General Insurance Company Limited (Assicurazioni Generali of Trieste and Venice), according to announcement made by the Empire Shipping Company Limited, British Columbia agents for the line. Such insurance is available at the same rates and conditions asked by any other insurance underwriter for other than Italian flag vessels.

The General Insurance Company Limited is one of the oldest and most powerful insurance companies in the world, and its agents in New York are Messrs. S. D. McComb and Company, 116 John Street, New York City, from whom full information and rates can be obtained.

By reason of numerous conflicting statements and much confusion with regard to the question of insurance, the company has found it advisable to inform shippers of the above facts.

REZONE BLOCK AT JUNCTION

Imperial Oil Company Wins Case For Erection of Car-washing Building

The City Council, at its meeting yesterday evening authorized the rezoning of the triangular block bounded by Fort Street, Oak Bay Avenue and Morrison Street, to permit the construction of a car-washing structure there sought by the Imperial Oil Company, which already has a service station in that location.

The action was taken following the presentation of cases for and against the proposal, first by Sidney Child, representing Harold Lovick, a home owner in the block, in opposition, and by Frank Turley, representing the oil company, in favor of the move.

Mr. Child stated his client, owner of a lot close to the gasoline station, objected to any change in the zoning by-law which would allow the erection of a car-washing building on the vacant lot between the Imperial Oil station and Mr. Lovick's home. His client, Mr. Child stated, had built his home on the understanding it would be in a residential area.

In reply to a question, Mr. Child stated Mr. Lovick had built his home before the gasoline station was erected.

Alderman James Adam asked for the inspection of the plans for the proposed new construction before any action should be taken.

IMPROVEMENT PLAN

Frank Turley, representing the Imperial Oil Company, stated his concern had desired to make a new construction at their station at a cost of $3,000 or $4,000. A plan had been submitted to the contractors and it was not until Mr. Lovick had raised an objection that the company had learned the lot was not zoned for service station use.

"It seems to me all the other companies can get what they want," Mr Turley said as he asked the council for speedy action.

Alderman Alex Peden, in question, revealed the proposed car-washing building would be twenty feet from Mr. Lovick's house and would front on Fort treet.

"We would assume now that all the other property owners in the block are agreeable to the erection of the new building," Alderman Archie Wills noted.

They had been given a chance to speak on the matter, the acting mayor said.

When the by-law was put to the vote later in the evening, the rezoning proposal carried.

H. S. Pringle, city solicitor, was yesterday evening instructed to protect the city's interests in default of payment by the Panama Pacific Grain Terminals of certain fees. The instructions to Mr. Pringle were given by the City Council.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

WHEN WORLD champion Walter Lindrum and New Zealand champion Clark McConachy play their exhibition billiard match at the Chamber of Comerce on Friday and Saturday spectators will see a new rule in operation. The regulation was recently announced by the billiard control council in London. Attempting to solve the question of how to stop huge breaks the council passed the following rule: "The cue ball must pass the baulk line between 180 and 200 points during a break."

* * *

Perhaps this will sound a little ambiguous to the average person. Here is an example: supposing either of the champions is on a run at the top end of the table and the break has reached, say, 170. The player has then to work out the problem of getting the cue ball across the baulk line and he has only twenty points to do it in.

* * *

During their two-day exhibition here Lindrum and McConachy will give talks, play snooker and exhibition shots as well. Questioned about his snooker game in Vancouver Lindrum declared it was the "world's worst" and in the next breath stated he made a break of 113 a few months ago. Quite a lot of interest is being shown around town over the exhibition and no doubt the two famous players will attract good galleries.

* * *

There is little interest so far in Canada in the Olympic programme set forth so elaborately in Germany and while the Hitler dominated country is making great preparations for the event there is the danger that this work may be all in vain.

One must of course admire the tremendous efforts being put forth to make this an occasion of good will, athletic brotherhood and all that sort of thing. If it should happen that the concord established at Los Angeles is repeated it would be a very great victory for sport in general. Europeans of such nations as France, Germany, Italy, for instance whose racial animosities go back far into the centuries may be able to assemble on such a martial locale as Berlin without letting their emotions get the better of them, but it all sounds like a fantastic dream to many. Former Olympic games in Europe were the breeding ground of athletic arguments that have echoed down the corridors of time. Pat Mulqueen, whose famous battles at Amsterdam have become part and parcel of field track history, could tell many a stirring tale of the barriers, obstacles and annoyances that are put in the road of competing athletes from this side of the water by the European overlords.

The Germans at that may prove the most sporting and courtliest nation athletically that ever held the games. Let us hope so. That is a very optimistic view-point.

In a way it would be a lot better to let the games proceed without further bickering. The lessons of sport might make such headway that there would be a general alteration of such principles as are prevailing at present in that Hitler ruled country. Sport after all may be the best antidote for Hitlerism, and contact with the sportsmen of other countries might do much to soften the viewpoint prevaling in the land that once glorified Schiller and Goethe, rather than such personages as William Hohenzollern before the war and Adolf Hitler at present to whom the tolerance usually associated with sport has been conspicuous by its absence.

Britain's best long-distance walker, the only man in the world who has walked from London to Brighton in under eight hours, wants to beat records, and cannot get a chance. He is H. H. Whitlock, of the Metropolitan Walking Club, who recently won the London-Brighton race in seven hours fifty-three minutes fifty seconds, and is Britain's hope for the fifty kilometres event at the Olympic Games next year, but he does not hold a world's record. That is because world's walking records can only be recognized if they are made on a measured track. Most of Whitlock's performance have been accomplished on roads, and rank only as "noteworthy feats."

* * *

"There is nothing I would like better than a chance to attack some of the world's long-distance records," Whitlock stated, "but there seems to be no prospect of doing so this season.

"It is necessary to organize a special race, which would occupy a track for eight hours. The expense of hiring the track, the difficulty of securing enough judges and timekeepers to be on duty for that length of time, and the apparent impossibility of attracting large crowds and so making the event profitable, stand in the way.

"If an eight hours' race could be held at any time during the next month I am ready, and willing, to have a cut at some of the records now held by Rasmussen of Denmark, and Dalinsch, the Latvian, but I am afraid the opportunity will not come this year."

22 to 1 Choice Beats Nightcap To Wire By Head

Hoplite Is Third Three-quarters of Length Back; Twenty-nine Starters

ALL FAVORITES OUT OF MONEY

Canadian Press

Newmarket, Eng., Oct. 16.—Sir Alfred Butt's three-year-old Near Relation won the ninety-seventh renewal of the Cesarewitch Stakes here to-day over the two and one-quarter miles stretch. The French entry, Nightcap, a three-year-old owned by Princess de Faucigny-Lucinge, was second, and Hoplite, Captain Lionel Montagu's four-year-old, finished third.

Twenty-nine entered the famous autumn stake which is for 1,000 sovereigns added. Jockey E. Smith was aboard Near Relation, Sibbritt had the mount on Nightcap and Harry Wragg rode Hoplite.

Near Relation carrying the nice price of 22 to 1 nosed out Nightcap by only a head. Nightcap paid 25 to 1, finishing three-quarters of a length ahead of Hoplite at 100 to 7.

Near Relation, which stole the race from such favorites as Sir Abe Bailey's Doreen Jane and G. P. X. Hartigan's Tommack, is a brown gelding by Solon in Law out of Yoiyou and carried 107 pounds.

Nightcap, a brown colt by Pinglas out of Revose, carried 109 pounds, Hoplite, brown gelding by Winalot out of Hegemony, near top weight of 112 pounds.

"I enjoyed it very much," said the 140-pound package of golf dynamite, after turning in a 71, one over par. "It is all a matter of direction. It is a very tight course, not long, but it requires great accuracy.

There were all the big names in golf—Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel, Horton Smith, Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee; Craig Wood, Deal, N.J.; Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., the nation's low scorer for the year, and a host of others were on hand.

The official entry list was 122. It contained all the members of the Ryder Cup team. Only Olin Dutra, Chicago, was missing to-day.

PERRY ON WAY TO AUSTRALIA

British Tennis Star Announces He Will Go Into Business; Not Turning Pro

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 16.—Fred Perry, the world's greatest tennis player, became Mr. Frederick J. Perry, the business man, when he boarded the liner Lurline to-day, bound for Australia.

"From now on tennis will be just a hobby with me," said the husband of Helen Vinson, the actress, between alternate spells of packing and bidding friends farewell yesterday.

"I'm going into business and you really can't make lawn tennis your business, you know. Of course a man must have a hobby so mine will be tennis."

NO PRO IDEAS

Perry's employers will be Slazenger Limited, an Australian sporting concern, and his work will take him from Australia a goodly share of the time into England, Canada and the United States. And he no longer entertains professional ideas.

"That was finished last April," he said. "But I think I can profit better by working up in some business. I am looking into the future in my new work."

Perry hopes to be on the British Davis Cup team next year when he is back in England.

Miss Vinson is not going to Australia with him. She has some unfinished work in the studios here and then will go to England for work this winter, meeting her husband there.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS — By John Hix

The bombardment of Fort Sumter was, in its way, the most important battle of the Civil War. It came when there was still hope that actual fighting could be averted between the states. But when the first shell broke over Fort Sumter, where Major Robert Anderson and a garrison of 128 vainly defended their post, war had begun. There was no longer hope for peace—and to both South and North came the abrupt realization that was was not now a possibility, but a fact.

The next day, April 13, 1861, President Lincoln called for 75,000 volunteers. Little more than two weeks later another 82,000 were called. In the meantife, operations were started, ports were ordered blockaded. In late july came the first Battle of Bull Run, and with it the promise that a long and bloody war was at hand.

Fort Sumter was no sham battle. Twenty-five hundred shells lit inside the fort, almost demolishing the stronghold. Yet, strange as it seems, this battle which started the war which cost more American lives than any other, was fought without bloodshed. No one was killed on either side, no one was even wounded.

Among the many legends of India is the one that tells that a cobra spreads its hood to shield the sleeping Buddha from the sun. Hindus, who called this snake "the black snake," look upon it as sacred. They refuse to kill it. The snake, protected by superstition, is free to wander and kill at will. About 20,000 people are killed every year by it in India, and an untold amount of property damage is suffered by its attacks on livestock.

To-morrow: The Horsewhipped King.

Alex Connell Will Pass From Hockey As Great Champion

Veteran Ottawa Goalie Retires From Game This Time as One of Its Brightest Stars; Staged Brilliant Comeback After Being a Beaten Athlete

By A. E. FULFORD

The unsmiling little Ottawa fire department secretary, who came out of retirement last season to help Montreal Maroons to a world title is going back to the fire hall to spend his winters regaling the boys in his own hot-stove league with tall tales of the hockey wars.

Tommy Gorman, who signed the great goalie to his first professional contract with Ottawa Senators in 1924, said at New York he had been unable to shake Connell's decision to leave the game as a champion

FATE IS STRANGE

Fate played a strange trick when Gorman bought Bill Beveridge, former St. Louis Eagles, to replace Connell. Beveridge skated into Connell's cage once before in a game that forms the only bitter episode in Connell's hockey memories.

Senators were playing New York Rangers in Ottawa on the night of January 28, 1933, and were taking a bad beating when the fans set up a shout to replace Connell. The goalie was signaled from his cage and he shuffled to the dressing room with the boos of home town fans ringing in his ears. He never played for Ottawa again.

After that no big league team wanted Connell, and he spent the rest of the season out of hockey. Gorman still had faith in him, and last season used his Irish persuasive powers to induce him to forget those boos and try a comeback.

He justified Gorman's confidence by writing into hockey's colorful history its most surprising comeback chapter. Working behind a team that was given little chance of taking the world title, Connell had a major share in their rise to the world title. His whip-lash comments directed at the players were almost as great a contribution to Maroon success as his brilliant goal tending.

LEAVES AS CHAMPION

Now Beveridge is succeeding Connell again, but under very different circumstances than obtained that night in Ottawa. Connell was a beaten athlete then, unwanted at the end of a long career. If he sticks to his decision now he leaves the game as one of its brightest stars.

Connell, teller of tall tales with a grave expression that makes them sound plausible, leaves hockey as its enigma as well as its jester. Sallow, thin, he looks little like an athlete. Yet he once went six seasons without missing a game, and likes it best when the going is heavy. If there ever was any doubt about his ability to tend goal as well as anyone in the game his remarkable performance against Toronto last spring swept that aside.

GRAHAM TAKES COMEBACK BOUT

Utica, N.Y., Oct. 16.—Bushy Graham, 130, former world bantamweight champion, carved the third notch in his comeback trail yesterday evening when he whipped Honey Boy Hughes, 135, Granville, Vt., in the six-round main event before a packed house. There were no knockdowns and Graham held the upper hand throughout.

SONNENBERG IN LOSS TO CHAMP

Drops Two Straight Falls to Danno O'Mahony in Mat Bout at Providence

O'Mahony used his Irish whip to win the first fall at 18.48, after Sonnenberg had missed a hard flying tackle. Sonnenberg set the pace as they went into the second fall. With a head scissors he drew blood from O'Mahony's mouth. A moment later he scored with a flying tackle as O'Mahony broke out of the punishing headlock.

With a sudden spurt O'Mahony applied a body scissors and as Sonnenberg broke loose and hit the ropes, the Irish champion pinned him for the deciding fall in 9.21.

MAX BAER GETS PICTURE OFFERS

Associated Press

San Francisco, Oct. 16.—Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, said today the former world's heavyweight champion, having forsaken the floodlights of the boxing rings, may turn on the bright lights of the motion picture studios.

The handsome, brawny "Livermore Lothario" his manager said, has offers to make pictures both in Hollywood and England, but probably will not accept either this year.

"We have good offers," said Hoffman, "but he's entitled to a rest, and so am I."

JONES WINS BY KNOCKOUT

Avenging a previous defeat, Jones yesterday evening was awarded a technical knockout victory over Eddie Carroll, Ottawa, by Referee Honore Chevrier, who halted the scheduled ten-round bout at the end of the eighth after the local boxer had absorbed considerable punishment.

Despite a wide cut over his left eye received in the fourth round, Carroll fought desperately to floor Jones but apparently could do no harm. Jones's darting, left and weaving tactics proved too much for the Ottawan, whose long range attacks never found their mark.

Player Shake-up In N.H.L. As St. Louis Club Eliminated

Seven Teams To Profit By Deal Open Play Nov. 7

Boston Club Has Many Recruits

New York, Oct. 16.—One grand shuffle of players in the National Hockey League resulted yesterday when the Board of Governors purchased outright the franchise, players and rights of the St. Louis Eagles. Sale of the Eagles, owned by Ottawa interests headed by Redmond Quain, really marked the passing of the famed Ottawa Senators, one of the four charter members of the N.H.L.

Every member of the Eagles team was allotted to one of the other eight teams. The distribution was as follows:

It is the first time in the league's history action of this kind was necessary. Had not the league made the purchase it would have meant that the Ottawa syndicate, in the event it declined to put a team on the ice, would have forfeited its franchise and the players would have been turned loose to seek employment.

Later, New York Americans announced they had traded Kelly to Detroit for Voss.

The Senators failed to operate in the 1931-32 season, resumed operation in 1932-33 at a heavy loss and then transferred the franchise to St. Louis last year. Quain and his associates could not make ends meet in the Missouri city either, so the club was put on the block, but there were no offers.

Frank Calder, president of the league, called an emergency meeting of the board and advocated purchase of the franchise. The purchase price was not announced officially but it was reliably stated each of the eight surviving clubs had contributed $5,000, or a total of $40,000.

The urgency of the meeting was due in part to the fact that the 1935-36 schedule had to be drawn to-day, including arrangements for the Stanley Cup play-offs. Calder said the league would operate as an eight-club circuit since there is no prospective buyer for the franchise. The regular method of qualifying the three top teams in each division for the play-offs would be in force, he said.

OPENS NOVEMBER 7

The schedule, approved after it was decided that no attempt would be made to operate the St. Louis club, will open on November 7, when the Americans play the Black Hawks at Chicago. The other clubs will move into action the following Saturday and Sunday, November 9 and 10.

Boston, Oct. 16.—Fourteen amateur hockey players, all products of last year's Canadian junior and senior teams, report at Saint John, N.B., Friday for tryouts with the Boston Bruins. All of them have obtained permission from their governing boards, and if they fail to meet National Hockey League requirements their amateur status will not be impaired.

Three hail from Toronto, Bud Mayes, Jimmy Good and Roy Conacher, younger brother of Lionel and Charlie, the National League stars. Four Kitchener youths, Milton Schmidt, Porky Dumart, Bobby Bauer and Carlo Kuntz, are on the Bruins' tryout list, along with a trio from Winnipeg, Ivan Johnson, Ned Leslie and Walter Cunningham.

Dick Klein, brother of the New York Americans' player, from Melville, Sask., Irving McKee, from Charlottetown, P.E.I., Robert Gross, Sudbury, Ont., and Bob McCranor, Fort William, are on Manager Frank Patrick's list. The latter, and Fred Hitchman, pilot of the Bruins' Canadian-American League farm team, will have a squad of forty-three players when they start the pre-season work.

Quebec, Oct. 16.—George "Buck" Boucher, former National Hockey League defenceman, and last year manager of the now-dissolved St. Louis Eagles, yesterday was appointed manager of Springfield Indians of the Canadian-American League.

Lucien Garneau, Quebec, owner of the Springfield club, made the announcement. The Springfield club was recently transferred from Quebec, and will operate in the American city under the same management.

Suspension To Basketballers

For engaging in rough tactics and ungentlemanly conduct during a basketball game at the Victoria High School gym last Friday evening Ken Fleming of the Hoyle-Brown team and Les Bradley, Tillicums, were handed two-game suspensions, at a meeting of the executive of the Victoria and District League yesterday evening.

According to the report of Referee Fred Harding the two players were in a mix-up and given disqualifying fouls.

The smart intermediate A cagers, Chinese Students and Fernwood Merchants, will make their first appearance this season, when they battle in the second fixture on the card.

RUMORS HAVE FOXX MOVING

Philadelphia Slugger Will Be Traded Or Sold; Mack Gets First Baseman

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—The baseball air was thick to-day with new talk that Jimmy Foxx may be doing his slugging for another club than the Athletics next year.

The rumors started with the announcement that Connie Mack has acquired a star first-sacker from the Coast League.

But the fact remains that Mack, although he has Jimmy as a capable first-baseman and hitter extraordinary, has obtained another guardian for the initial sack—Jim Oglesby, Los Angeles, who hit .365 during the 1935 campaign. Oglesby was picked up for $7,500.

Cosier ran twenty yards to notch the next three points. Bray failed to convert.

Company Forgot Money in Bank

When the Island Amusement Company, which built the Kinemacolor Theatre at Government and Cormorant Streets before the war, went into liquidation in 1917 because the movie house could no longer be made to pay and became legally "dead," it overlooked the fact that it had a sum of money in the bank.

In 1928 the company was removed from the list of companies at the Parliament Buildings, and so ceased to exist in any form. However, the money in the Royal Bank of Canada remained there in its name.

To-day D. M. Gordon, counsel for the Royal Bank, applied to Mr. Justice Robertson of the Supreme Court for direction as to what the bank should do with the money, which has now grown to a sum of $7,200.

Alan Maclean, representing the Attorney-General's department, said that as the company had ceased to exist the money should be turned over to the government. He explained the government's object was to turn the money over to a liquidator to distribute to those who are legally entitled to it. He said the government only wanted to safeguard the interest of the shareholders or creditors.

Mr. Gordon explained that the company had been restored to the list of registered companies in April, 1935. He said its shareholder list contained names of B. S. Heisterman, J. E. Wilson and other Victorians.

The court was asked to give a ruling on the legal effect on the company of having been struck off the list and then revived.

Court Issues Second Warning To Motorists

Magistrate Jay Fines Four Drivers $50 Each For Fast Driving

"If $50 fines do not stop fast driving there is still a margin left, you know. The maximum is anything up to $300," said Magistrate George Jay in the City Police Court this morning, when $200 was collected from four drivers convicted of driving to the common danger in and around the city.

During the last two weeks, since issuing his warning, the magistrate has kept his word, and showed little leniency for drivers charged with speeding.

His remark this morning indicated fines would soar even higher if the speeding persists.

Those fined this morning were: Jack R. Walker of Jordan River, Robert C. Payne of Duncan, E. M. Waldie of Duncan and John Wright, Cadboro Bay Road.

The first three pleaded guilty. Police testified Walker was paced at fifty-five miles an hour along Gorge Road, Waldie at sixty miles an hour on the same road, Payne at forty-five mile an hour along Douglas Street in Cloverdale, and Wright at from fifty to fifty-five miles an hour on Fort Street, between Linden and Blanshard Streets.

GORDON MAY TRY BURRARD

Local C.C.F. Candidate Boosted For Nominee in By-election

Political circles to-day carried the report that Prof. King Gordon, who ran second in Monday's federal poll to D. B. Plunkett, may carry the C.C.F. colors in the Vancouver - Burrard by-election for the provincial house.

With a margin for the C.C.F. in the Burrard federal riding, the party is anxious to put up a strong candidate in the by-election.

Prof. Gordon took part in the federal campaign on the mainland and at that time crossed swords with Mayor G. G. McGeer, the Liberal candidate.

The C.C.F. undoubtedly will attempt to choose a popular nominee in Omineca as well.

In political circles it is generally considered the C.C.F. and the government Liberal supporters will be the two dominant factors in the by-elections although there is a probability of the Conservatives moving to rehabilitate themselves provincially and test their strength in this way.

The new Social Credit party, formed in Victoria yesterday evening, is also considering putting candidates in, although they feel the movement has not gained enough headway yet to make this a real test.

POLICE CHIEF GIVES WARNING

Reiterates Statement to Public to Safeguard Homes and Jewelry

A series of six break-ins over the week-end and the entry of two business houses yesterday evening when unsuccessful attempts were made to crack safes, this morning prompted Police Chief Heatley to reiterate his warning to householders for the safeguarding of their homes.

"Despite the numerous occasions on which I have warned the people through the press that they should lock their homes securely and see that their jewels are safely placed away outside the reach of housebreakers, we continue to receive reports of homes and business houses being left unlocked," the chief said.

Officers making their rounds regularly report that certain premises have been found open and although police immediately notify owners on some occasions thieves are there before them, the chief said.

SAFES BROKEN

The latest attempted thefts were reported at the Bell Motor Company and the Motor House. In both instances the dials of safes were broken off and the thieves tried to open the safes from inside the dials.

P. Irvine, 3128 Quadra Street, reported two rugs and a dashboard clock stolen from his car while it was parked on View Street yesterday evening.

A group of young criminals has recently been released from prison and although police are making every effort to keep a check on them, they require public co-operation to materially assist them in running the gang down, the chief said. These men are chiefly concerned with getting money and jewelry.

MUST PAY UP ARREARS SOON

Properties With Outstanding 1933 Taxes Go on Block in City November 4

The continued steady flow of tax arrears to the city during the month is confidently expected by George Okell, city assessor-collector, according to a statement issued by him to-day.

So far this year, tax arrears have been paid in much greater volume than last year. In view of the fact the annual tax sale lists will be issued on or about November 1 and the sale will start on November 4, the pace with which payments have been made during the last few weeks will probably be accelerated as the month draws to a close.

Property holders who have not paid 1933 levies will be given until October 30 to meet that year's levy. Any properties on which taxes are not paid by that date will be placed on the list but may be taken off before the sale opens by payment of the levy before November 4.

"I believe the arrears will keep coming in at least as quickly and possibly more quickly than they have during recent weeks. This year the collections through those channels are well above those of 1934 and the increase over last year should be maintained as property holders keep their holdings off the tax sale list," Mr. Okell stated.

Total B.C. Vote Close To 300,000

On Proportionate Basis Support For Liberal And C.C.F. Parties About Even

Close to 300,000 of British Columbia's 372,068 registered voters went to the polls on Monday, the latest check of votes indicates.

With several of the country ridings still incomplete, the poll totals 268,031.

The percentages of each of the total are: C.C.F. 34.5%, Liberals 32.1%, Conservatives 24.3% and others 9.1%.

While the C.C.F. elected one less member than the other two major parties and had a larger total vote, this situation is partly explained by the fact that they had more candidates running, and naturally each one's vote helped to swell the party total. In one riding alone, Vancouver East, Angus MacInnes compiled over 15,000 votes, double the total of the runner-up.

On a comparative basis the votes accorded the C.C.F. and the Liberal parties were about even. The C.C.F. had sixteen candidates and the Liberals fifteen. Taking one-sixteenth off the C.C.F. total, or adding one-fifteenth to the Liberal total, puts the two parties on an even keel in popular vote.

Owing to the fact that the decorating in the Empress ballroom is not yet finished the Rotary Club luncheon will be held in the grill to-morrow.

Vancouver, Oct. 16 (Canadian Press).—A man and a woman, whose names police refused to divulge, were arrested to-day for investigation four hours after two men and a woman had attacked George Otto on West Cordova Street and robbed him of $130 in cash.

TROPHY GIVEN FOR ARCHERY

Members of Victoria Club to Try to Get Deer With Arrow

Due to the enthusiastic response of archery on Vancouver Island, H. E. Woodley, of Glendale, California, honorary member of the Victoria Archery Club and well-known Pacific Coast archer, has donated a beautiful trophy, to be competed for annually, and presented to the member of the local club to bag the largest deer with a bow and arrow.

The trophy is a large silver spike buck, mounted on a quarter turned base of native yew. Around the base of the trophy are small shields, on which will be engraved the names of annual winners.

It is the aim of the Victoria Archery Club to have a certain area set aside for hunting with the bow and arrow specifically, and an appeal to that effect will be made to the British Columbia Game Commission in the near future.

This annual contest will no doubt cause much interest and arouse some very competitive spirit among local archers.

OIL BOYCOTT AGAINST ITALY

Canadian Press from Havas

Geneva, Oct. 16.—Three of the world's largest oil companies, one of them the Standard Oil Company, are discussing the possibility of jointly cutting off all their shipments of fuel to Italy, according to reports. The Royal Dutch and the Anglo-Persian Oil Company are the other two concerns involved in the discussions.

The drama group of the Metropolitan United Young People's Society will meet on Friday evening in the reading room to continue the preparation of the "Christmas Pageant of the Holy Grail," which will be presented in the schoolroom on December 16. Over twenty characters are needed for the production, and there are still a few openings for those interested. The Glee Club will render the music that will be necessary for the presentation, and they will meet on Friday, November 1, under the direction of Edward Parsons.

Cash Receipts In City Show Slight Reduction

Cash receipts other than taxes collected in the City of Victoria for the period ended September 30 stood approximately $1,800 below those of the same period in 1934, it was revealed in a statement issued to-day by D. A. Macdonald, city comptroller-treasurer.

In all, 433,913.14 were turned in to the city's coffers up to that date, against $435,116.66 for the corresponding months of last year.

Drops in motor tax returns and in the Sooke water rates were sufficient to make the difference in spite of a majority of minor gains made in other items.

Estimates for the year place total collections of that nature at $591,032, of which $433,913.14 had been received at the end of last month. Last year collections amounted to $591,080.09.

J. P. NANKIVELL PASSES AWAY

Retired Contractor Had Been Resident Here Forty-seven Years

James Peter Nankivell, a resident of this city for forty-seven years, passed away yesterday at the Jubilee Hospital, aged seventy-two years. A native of Cornwall, England, Mr. Nankivell came to Canada in 1880 and for some time was employed by the C.P.R. erecting snowsheds in the mountains. He came to Victoria in 1888 and entered business as a carpenter and builder. He retired from active contracting about four years ago. Mr. Nankivell was a member of Alexandra Lodge, Sons of England.

He is survived by his widow, at home, 814 Dominion Road; one son, Arthur; two daughters, Mrs. W. H. Edgar and Mrs. F. G. Woods, and four grandchildren, all of Victoria, and a brother in England.

Rev. E. M. Willis will officiate at funeral services on Saturday at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in Colwood Burial Park.

NEW POLITICAL GROUP FORMED

Social Crediters Here Start Provincial Party; Plan to Contest Next Election

Calling themselves the British Columbia Provincial Social Credit League they announced after a meeting in the Union Building their objective of contesting every seat in the next provincial election.

Rev. F. W. McKinnon was chosen president with D. L. McMartin as vice-president, C. Keeping as secretary-organizer, Mrs. M. C. Barnes-McRae as treasurer and women's group chairman, J. Brown-Colthurst as director, S. H. Meredith as publicity chairman and Miss E. Cole as chairman of the entertainment committee.

Although the two Social Credit candidates in British Columbia at the federal election polled only 1,815 votes between them, the local supporters have high hopes of getting the movement up to the pitch of a strong political factor by the next provincial election.

"We had only twenty at our meeting last night, but I know of hundreds that are behind us," said Mr McKinnon this morning.

HELP FROM ABERHART

The new league will look to Alberta for assistance from Premier William Aberhart, whose supporters scored such impressive victories both provincially and federally.

"I've known Mr. Aberhart for years. I know he will help," said Mr. McKinnon.

Attempts are now being made to have Mr. Aberhart come to the Coast and speak.

Although those connected with the new league have been basing their studies for the last year or so on the social credit theories of Major C. H. Douglas, the league will not itself be pinned down strictly to his plan. This was indicated in the decision, after some discussion, to restrict the title to a Social Credit League.

MERGE ALL GROUPS

The league will seek to merge all existing social credit groups in the province, it was stated. The title "league" will also allow supporters of other political parties to join, although in a campaign the designation might be changed to "party," it was said.

While new in the field the league will have a chance to test its theories shortly from a provincial standpoint in the by-elections of Burrard and Omineca. They have yet to decide whether the movement has a strong enough foothold for this, however.

COLD NOT SOLE CAUSE OF HOARSE THROAT

Huskiness Also May Result From Overstrain, Infection, Cancer, or Tuberculosis, and Even Babies May Get It Suddenly

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

When your voice gets hard and husky, you are likely to suspect that you are catching cold, and probably most of the time you will be right. But there are many other causes of hoarseness, and if the huskiness persists you should have an examination to find out whether any other factor may be the cause.

The habit of talking in a well-modulated voice with proper intonation and emphasis represents in many cases training and proper study of the use of the voice. A soft voice with suitable emphasis when required is a most valuable factor in gaining worldly success.

Hoarseness may come on any time in life. A baby may become hoarse almost immediately after birth due to some congenital infection.

As a child gets older, sudden hoarseness may be brought about by diphtheria or other infectious diseases, and may also be associated with small growths which may develop on the vocal cords.

Grown-up people most frequently get hoarse following prolonged use of the voice. This follows particularly speaking for long periods of time. Business men get hoarse after long conferences associated with intemperate eating, drinking and smoking.

When the vocal cords are examined under such circumstances, they are usually found to be thickened and congested. A rest will give the cords a chance to return to normal.

Singers who use the voice too freely over long periods of time sometimes develop small nodules on the cords which will bring about hoarseness.

The most serious causes of hoarseness are cancer and tuberculosis of the vocal cords. A hoarseness which persists demands an immediate examination as to the presence of one or both of these conditions.

Seen early, the cancer may be removed surgically or treated with radium, and in many instances with success. Tuberculosis of the throat if seen early may be amenable to the usual method of treatment of tuberculosis, and sometimes may be cured by the direct application of the ultra-violet rays.

Hoarseness also will be brought about by an injury which damages the nerves that control the muscles of the larynx and thereby the vocal cords. Chronic rheumatic conditions, tumors, poisoning by lead and arsenic, operations which may damage the nerves, and many other factors may be responsible for this condition.

of the states of the Union, where they have, on occasion, called in the aid of the military forces to enforce civil law, they have been signally unsuccessful in suppressing crime and subduing lawlessness.

CHURCH AND CAPITALISM

To the Editor:—In answer to Goffrey Le Gallais's letter in October 10 issue of Daily Colonist, I beg to differ with him in what he says, "the views of the Christian churches on the same subject (viz., resolution of the United Church Convention, 1933; resolution of Lambeth Conference, 1930; pronouncement of Catholic Hierarchy of Saskatchewan, 1934, all condemning capitalism as being contrary to Christ's teachings) on this subject of the abolition of the capitalistic system the C.C.F. is therefore in excellent company."

In Liberty's issue of October 19, 1935, in an interview with His Holiness Pope Pius XI, it states: "Of Socialism and Communism he will have none—antireligious and anti-social propaganda he excoriates. Government has more than the duty of merely preserving order, it has the equally urgent duty of enforcing social justice; but it has neither the duty nor the right of destroying legitimate personal liberty or contravening the principle of private property." Surely the views quoted above are quite clear to every clear-thinking citizen in this Dominion of Canada.

SOCIAL CREDIT

To the Editor:—Sooner or later Mr. Hutchison will have to stop pretending that advocates of Douglas Social Credit are well-meaning but weak-headed, and begin examining the facts that Social Credit uncovers, and the proposals that C. H. Douglas has made for the sane operation of our economic system. And Mr. Hutchison will have to drop his pose of amused detachment and, if he continues to deal with matter, deal with it within the terms of reference. For instance, he will have to sharpen up his knowledge of What Douglas Social Credit is, if his column of a recent date on the visit of the Dean of Canterbury is anything to judge by.

He writes: "But once you start to set up the economic controls, balances, price-fixings and general supervision of business which Social Credit involves, you will quickly reach the point where industry may be owned in name by private individuals, but it will be completely under the direction of the state. The owners will be simply agents of the state in running their business. And as they become annoyed and can't make as much profit as they would like, they will lie down on the job or openly revolt. Then the state will probably have to take over the industries one by one to make them work. Social Credit is probably the intermediate step into Socialism."

Well, to be brief, in Douglas Social Credit principles there is offered no "economic controls," no "balances," no "price-fixing," and no "general supervision of business."

Douglas Social Credit proposals are three in number, and three only, viz:

1. National control and issue of money in exact reflection of the physical facts of production; not to control production.
2. The national dividend.
3. The price discount.

And that is all. I don't know whether Mr. Hutchison's talk about government controlling production, profits and business in general is just to make our flesh creep, or that he has got Social Credit mixed up with

REFUSES TRUMP TRICK

By WM. E. McKENNEY

This is the last of a series of six articles by midwestern champions who will attend the first Detroit American Bridge League master point tournament, Oct. 17 to 20.

The Indianapolis delegation to the Detroit tournament will be headed by J. E. Cain. Cain, perhaps, has more fun playing bridge in the big tournaments than any other player. He gets a great laugh from the serious way in which the experts take their game, but do not for a minute think that Cain does not try just as hard as anyone, and his tournament record shows that he is entitled to rank with the best.

In to-day's hand Cain held the South cards. His opponent in West was one of the country's best, which is demonstrated by the way he handled the hand.

North ♠ 9 6 4 3 ♥ 6 ♦ Q 8 2 ♣ 9 8 6 4 2
West ♠ A 8 2 ♥ A K Q 10 9 3 ♦ J 5 ♣ A K
East ♠ Q 10 7 ♥ 5 4 2 ♦ 6 3 ♣ Q J 10 7 5
South ♠ K J 5 ♥ J 8 7 ♦ A K 10 9 7 4 ♣ 3

Duplicate N. & S. vul.

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Double	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♦ Q. 5.

THE PLAY

North's opening lead was the queen of diamonds, in response to his partner's diamond bid. This gave West his first reading on the hand. If North had held four diamonds, he would have led a small one; therefore, South was marked with at least six diamonds.

North continued with the eight spot and South won with the king. At this point South shifted and led the three of clubs. This might be the fourth best club, but it looked more like a singleton to West.

West won the trick with the ace and now cashed the ace and king of hearts. North showed out on the second lead, discarding a small spade.

There were now only three cards unknown in the South hand to declarer. If South held two clubs and two spades, declarer knew that he could make the contract, as he would have only one losing spade trick.

However, if South happened to hold, as he did, the king-jack and small spade, declarer had to make a very fine play to try to coax South into a trap.

Instead of picking up South's last trump, declarer at this point led the king of clubs. Now, if South made the mistake of trumping this trick with the jack of hearts, he would have to return either a spade or a diamond, which would give declarer an entry into dummy and the contract would be made.

However, Cain did not fall into the trap. He refused to trump, and now, regardless of how declarer handled the hand, he had to lose two spade tricks, thereby going down one trick. (Copyright, 1935, NEA Service Inc.)

Today's Contract Problem

North ♠ A 8 3 ♥ A K J 4 ♦ A 10 8 5 ♣ 9 6
West ♠ J ♥ 8 7 5 ♦ 9 7 6 2 ♣ Q J 5 3 2

Gerry McGeer's plan, which was really authored by Prof. F. Soddy of Cambridge University. But in any case, Mr. Hutchison should drop his pose of good-natured but jovial omnisience and do some further reading before sounding off on Social Credit.

"Lohengrin" At Royal Friday

Beautiful Music Features Third Act of Wagner Operetta to Be Given Here

Perhaps act three of Wagner's "Lohengrin," which is to be produced in its entirety with costuming and scenery by the Victoria Civic Opera Society, under the direction of Basil Horsfall, at the Royal Victoria Theatre, on October 18 and 19, contains the loveliest numbers in the whole opera.

The famous "Wedding March," played by full orchestra, and followed by the equally familiar "Briday" Chorus," opens the first scene of act three. As the curtain rises on the bridal chamber in the palace of Antwerp, the great doors swing open, the bridal party enters, Elsa with her ladies, and Lohengrin escorted by the king and nobles.

Her mind poisoned by the wily Ortrud, Elsa forgets her solemn vow and questions Lohengrin as to his name and origin. He remonstrates with her, and tries to dispel her agitation, to no avail. Frederick and four associates break into the room with drawn swords, Lohengrin strikes him dead with the sword which Elsa hands him. The nobles surrender, and this scene ends ith Elsa in a swoon in her lover's arms, and his ordering the company into the judgment hall.

DOMINION THEATRE

One of the most eagerly-awaited film productions of the moment is B.I.P.'s "Abdul the Damned," and picture-goers will therefore be glad to know that this is scheduled for to-day at the Dominion Theatre.

This picture, which is considered to be one of the most ambitious, and at the same time most unusual, productions ever attempted in England, tells the story of the tyrant Abdul Hamid II, Sultan of Turkey, who, by his extreme ruthlessness, won for himself the title, "Abdul the Damned."

Starring Fritz Kortner in the title role, the film boasts an outstanding cast of capable and popular players, each of whom was carefully chosen as being specially suited to portray the individual role concerned. Among these are Nils Asther, Adrienne Ames, John Stuart, Esme Percy and Charles Carson.

Made under the direction of the famous continental director, Karl Grune, some of the most elaborate and costly sets ever erected in the B.I.P. studios at Elstree were used for the production, and hundreds of "extras" were engaged to appear in the exciting scenes where the Turks rebel against their Sultan. A B.I.P. unit actually visited Constantinople to film exteriors and background shots.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

There is a trip that nobody takes.... That is, nobody but the favored few who have been privileged to work within the aura of her rare personality.

It is a journey to a sound stage, to watch secretively one of Greta Garbo's closely-guarded scenes for her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "The Painted Veil," which is at the Orpheum Theatre.

The scene is the interior of Dr. Walter Fane's Hong Kong bungalow. Dr. Fane in reality is Herbert Marshall. In the picture he is Miss Garbo's husband, an unimaginative medical scientist who has returned to China to battle cholera and who loses his wife's love through his ardor for his task.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Early in the morning a fleet of trucks left the Warner Bros. lots and returned with their loads of fresh vegetables. Many of the local markets had been stripped bare and the housewives had to journey into Hollywood to fill their market baskets.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

Uniting Irene Dunne, the singing star with the golden voice, with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, the wing-footed stars of "The Gay Divorcee," RKO-Radio presents "Roberta," a musical romance which made recent theatrical history as a stage production is now being shown at the Playhouse Theatre.

Dealing with the intriguing theme of love in a Paris gown shop, the picture is said to combine superlative music, dancing that will challenge the "Carioca" and the "Continental," and romance, drama and sparkling comedy. Another outstanding feature is a display of the latest in feminine fashions, modelled by twelve of America's most beautiful girls.

CAPITOL THEATRE

H. Rider Haggard's exciting adventure romance "She," now being shown at the Capitol, has finally been presented for universal enjoyment in a screen play, that is remarkable for its combination of drama and awe-inspiring spectacle.

Produced by Merian C. Cooper, who has to his credit such outstanding spectacles as "Grass," "Chang," and "King Kong," the picture is eminently successful in graphically setting forth the fantastic kingdom of Kor where most of the tale unfolds, as Leo Vincey and Archibald Holly, English scientists, penetrate it to find the secret of eternal life, with their protege Tanya, daughter of a trader who loses his life in leading them along the perilous ice-barred trail. The fabulous kingdom is ruled by an immortal empress who finds freedom from death by bathing in a flame. "She," this goddess-ruler, falls in love with Leo. The swift-flowing story is then concerned with a romantic battle for Leo's affection between "She" and the mortal Tanya. It has all the excitement of a mystery thriller and all the emotional punch of a great drama.

Associated Press

New York, Oct. 16.—Bull forces were disorganized in the stock market to-day by a sharp slump in Chicago and Winnipeg wheat.

Shares tried to rally for a time under leadership of the rails, after absorbing a flood of profit-taking early, but turned irregular again in the late trading. The final dealings were marked by a mixture of gains and losses, some of as much as a point or two. Transfers approximated 2,200,000 shares.

Most motor shares held firmly, although Chrysler slipped back a couple of points. Others off a point or two included such recent strong spots as Westinghouse, Du Pont, Case, National Steel and Air Reduction. Anaconda lost about a point, and other coppers were soggy. In rails, Union Pacific rose 4 points, then lost most of its gain. Miscellaneous issues still up a point or two in the final trading included Schenley, Pullman, Container Corporation "A," Spiegel May Stern, American Can and Celanese.

Maximum Losses As Board Dumps Wheat On Winnipeg Mart

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Oct. 16. — Wheat prices slumped the full three cents a bushel allowed in one day on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day as selling credit to the Canadian Wheat Board poured into the market.

Values closed at the day's lowest levels, October at 88⅝, November and December 89 and May 92⅞ cents.

General liquidation ensued when the board began selling wheat. Prices went into a swift decline with "longs" dumping their holdings, bringing heavy stop-loss selling into the pit.

Export sales of Canadian wheat, aggregating an estimated 500,000 bushels, failed to do more than stay the recession, which began shortly after the opening, when fractional advances were recorded.

At one time the October future, the cash month, dropped to within 1¼ cents of the minimum price established by the Wheat Board for No. 1 Northern wheat, 87½ cents a bushel.

Wheat closed flurried, 7⅞ to 3⅝ cents lower. December, $1.00⅝ to $1.00⅝. Corn, ⅝ to ⅞ cents down; December, 60¼ cents to 60⅜ cents. Oats, ⅜ to ⅝ cents off.

INDUSTRIALS CLOSE HIGHER

Canadian Press

Toronto, Oct. 16. — Interlisted industrial shares reflected the strong New York board to-day by advancing to a higher close on the Toronto Exchange.

Ford "A" had a gain of nearly a point, while fractional gains ran through the oil, liquor, food, steel and construction shares.

Consolidated Smelters was the day's feature, as it arose about ten points to around 191. It sold off to about 187½ in the last half hour to show a net gain of 5½. Nickel, on the other hand, was weak.

Distillers-Seagrams and Walker's common were the volume leaders. Brewery shares came out in comparatively small volume, but with prices holding stead to strong.

Action in Ford "A" was heavy, and the bulk of the gain was held till the close. Brazilian, while active, failed to get anywhere, and C.P.R. recorded a rise of ¼ to 9¾.

Narrow Range On Bond Mart

New York, Oct. 16.—The bond market was inclined to hesitancy today. U.S. governments turned somewhat irregular, while domestic corporate loans and foreign issues stuck to a narrow range with the undertone fairly steady.

Foreign bonds worked higher.

Tarzan The Untamed

Below Tarzan were no large branches that he might clutch as he lunged downward. His foot caught in a looped creeper so that he turned completely over and alighted on his back in the middle of the village street.

At the sound of the breaking limb and the crashing body falling through the branches, the startled blacks scurried to their huts for weapons. When the braver of them emerged, they saw the still form of an almost naked white man.

Tarzan lay where he had fallen. Seeing that he did not move and that none of his kind were in the tree, a dozen armed warriors surrounded him. One was for thrusting a spear through his heart, but Numabo, the chief would not permit it.

"Bind him," he said. "We will feed well to-night!" They tied Tarzan hand and foot with thongs of gut, a crowd of natives gathered to see the new prisoner. Then they carried him into the hut, where another white man also awaited his fate.

Consider What Children of Wealthy Families Have to Face

Dorothy Dix

Says Money Is a Curse To Babies of Rich Parents

WE WERE DISCUSSING a millionaire baby who had just been born not only with the proverbial golden spoon in his mouth but with a complete dinner service. Almost everyone said: "Isn't he the lucky kid?"

But is he? It seems not to me, and that no one need envy this baby. No greater misfortune can befall a youngster than to be born to great wealth, and no children are more to be pitied than the poor little millionaires. It is good fortune, of course, for a child to have parents in comfortable circumstances who can give it a good home, good food and a good education, but beyond that money is a curse to a child and not a blessing. For the things that a child most needs are the things that not only does money not buy but that the very rich are debarred from purchasing for their children.

The first of these is a free childhood. In these times of kidnapping every rich child is virtually born in prison and he never knows a single hour of personal liberty. Every minute of his life he is watched over by armed guards and he is just as much under surveillance as if he were a desperate criminal. He grows up in an atmosphere of fear and distrust that kills everything that is spontaneous and sweet and optimistic in his breast. He is shut off from the natural pleasures of childhood. He can't go on hikes with other boys, or play hookey or hunt birds' nests, or do any of the other things that children enjoy doing home. He has to have his bodyguard with him. There is too much danger of snatchers.

Once I was in a store when one of these poor little prisoners of wealth came in, flanked on either side by a husky with a pistol bulging in his coat. The lad bought a ten-cent toy and went out with his keepers, and I thought that the poorest little newsboy who darted in and out among the automobiles on the street or the humblest child who made mud pies in the gutter knew more of the happiness of childhood than the little millionaire would ever know.

Then the rich child seldom has a father and a mother except in a technical sense. This is not always the parents' fault. Great wealth brings great obligations, and it is virtually impossible for millionaires to be domestic and give their children the personal care and attention that poor people can bestow upon other youngsters.

The poor little rich boy does not even have a home. He is dragged from palaces in one part of the world to palaces in another, but he doesn't live in one place long enough to strike down roots and grow into his environment. He rarely has even a mother. He is turned over to nurses and governesses and tutors, who bring him up by hand and not by heart, and all that he knows of his father is a busy man who chucks him under the chin now and then and asks him how he is getting along. And about the closest contact he makes with his mother is when she comes to the nursery to kiss him good-night as she is starting out to some function.

Now you can't set a price upon a real father and mother. No amount of money compensates for not having been cradled in a mother's arms; for not having wept out your sorrows on a mother's tender breast; for not having been tucked into bed by a mother's hands, or for not having had a father with whom you have chummed and who always understood when you went to him with your little problems. The greatest happiness in the world comes from family life and family love, but it is something that the very rich seldom experience.

Then the millionaire children are cut off from what is the keenest pleasure in existence, and that is the sacred joy of achievement. Standing on your own feet. Making your own fortune. Being some one yourself instead of somebody's son. Doing things with your own brains instead of inheriting the work of some other man's brains. Of course, you may say that there is no reason why a rich boy shouldn't run the race as well as the poor boy. Nor is there. But he is too heavily handicapped to win unless he possesses a phenomenally strong character. He lacks the spur of necessity to goad him on. He has no incentive to struggle for the things he has already.

Somebody once said to a famous self-made man that he had given his son every advantage in the world. "All," replied the old man, "but the greatest advantage of all, and that is poverty."

In the end our happiness chiefly depends upon our relationship with others. In having a husband and wife whom we love and who love us, in having loyal and devoted friends who love us for ourselves alone. And the certainty of that is a privilege reserved for the poor.

The money-bags of the rich girl and boy make them the prey of fortune-hunters and gold-diggers and they have hardly a chance to escape being married for their money. So the poorest boy and girl who marry on a shoestring are far more likely to have a happy marriage than any millionaire. Furthermore, the rich boy is so beset from the cradle by chiselers and grafters that he loses all power even to believe in friendship.

So we might well pity instead of envy the poor little millionaire.

Uncle Wiggily's Concert

By HOWARD R. GARIS

One day instead of hopping out to look for an adventure, Uncle Wiggily sat down at his desk and began writing.

"What are you doing?" asked his wife. "Writing another story for the children to read in the paper?"

"I hope this may turn into a story, though I am not exactly writing it," said the rabbit gentleman. "I am sending out invitations, my dear, and you shall have the first one." He made his wife a low, polite bow, blew her a kiss from the tip of his pink, twinkling nose and handed her a piece of paper on which was written:

PLEASE COME TO UNCLE WIGGILY'S CONCERT

"Oh, how nice of you to give me the first invitation, Wiggy," said the rabbit lady. "I don't want to hurt your feelings, my dear, but you can't give a concert."

"Why not?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Did you ever hear me play the cornstalk fiddle?" asked Uncle Wiggily, smiling and not at all hurt in his feelings.

"No, I never heard you play the cornstalk fiddle," said Mrs. Longears. "Can you?"

DRUM AND TOOTER, TOO

"I can, and you shall hear me—at my concert," said the bunny gentleman. "You shall also hear me twang the pumpkin banjo. But I am not going to be the only player. Mr. Twistytail will play the drum and Uncle Butter, the goat, will toot his tooter."

"Oh, you funny old animal man!" laughed Mrs. Longears. "I'm sure your concert will be very silly, but I'll come."

"So will I if I get an invitation," squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who, with a rag tied on her tail, was dusting the piano.

"You shall have one," promised Uncle Wiggily. "Here it is Janie," and he gave it to her. "Now I must send out the others, for I want everybody to come to my concert. We'll fill the bungalow. And after I send out the invitations I must practice with Twisty and Butter, for we want this concert to be a success."

"Everybody will laugh at you, but I suppose you won't mind that, Wiggy," said his wife.

"Certainly not," he answered. "It's a good thing if you can make folks laugh. There isn't enough of it in the world."

For the next few days Uncle Wiggily was very busy. He and his goat and pig friends often went out to the garage, whence came strange sounds, some of them, Mrs. Longears had to admit, sounding rather like sweet music. But still she didn't believe Uncle Wiggily could really give a concert. At last the evening came. The bungalow was filled with animal friends of Uncle Wiggily, large and small. On a stage behind a bed quilt for a curtain, Mr. Longears and the other players took their places. All of a sudden, up went the curtain.

JOLLY CONCERT

And then such a jolly concert began as never was heard before. Uncle Wiggily played a fiddle made of squeaky cornstalks and also twanged a banjo made of a pumpkin with a broomstick handle and string beans for strings. Mr. Twistytail beat a drum made from an old puff or blow fish from the seashore, the spines having been taken off. And Uncle Butter tooted a flute made from a large elderberry bush branch with the pith pushed out to make it hollow.

"Squeak! Squeak! Twang! Twang!" played Uncle Wiggily. "Boom! Boom!" the fat pig beat in his puff fish drum. "Toot! Toot!" played Uncle Butter on his funny flute. It, it was the funniest, most jolly concert ever heard in Woodland! Mrs. Longears was surprised and so was everybody else. But Uncle Wiggily and his friends laughed. They knew what they could do. They had to give the whole concert twice.

And if the horse will lend a shoe to the foot of the stairs to do a tap dance, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the feat house.

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1935

According to astrology this should be a lucky day in planetary direction. It is auspicious for land deals and for improvements on dwellings.

While there is a sign presaging destructive efforts that affect political plans and business enterprises, labor appears to benefit under this sway.

Strikes great and small will greatly increase the power of labor and affect industry seriously before winter, if the stars are rightly read. Opposition to federal officials may be determined and stubborn.

On the Pacific Coast secret and subversive activities will aid the breach between employers and employees, it is forecast.

The rule of the stars encourages education and stimulates educators. This year is to emphasize the importance of storing wealth in the brain: for knowledge is to be recognized as more valuable than gold.

Women should prepare themselves for supreme tests of character, if they are ambitious for public service of any sort. There is to be organized effort to keep them out of desirable offices and to retard their progress in the professions, the seers prophesy.

Less will be heard of successful women, for they will receive scant attention in the newspapers as competition with men becomes more intense because of economic readjustments.

There is a sign read as an ill omen for women who are elected to office, for they will be subjects of determined efforts to discredit them.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of happy experiences in which old friends have their parts. Success is indicated for both men and women.

Children born on this day probably will be serious of mind and strong of character. Subjects of this sign are usually loyal and dependable.

Those who have celebrated it as a birthday include Eric Pape, artist, 1870, and Childe Hassan, artist, 1859.

DOCKERS REJECT VANCOUVER PLAN

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—Vancouver and District Waterfront Workers' Association last night voted against acceptance of a five-point proposal advanced by the British Columbia Shipping Federation, and announced they would draw up a programme of their own and present it to the federation.

The federation proposal was made following private conferences between the employers and the strikers, called at the instance of Mr. Justice H. H. Davis, who recently concluded an inquiry into the waterfront situation in British Columbia. Federation officials said they hoped their proposal would be accepted, bringing to an end longshore troubles which started early last June.

Ivan Emery, strike spokesmen, said the V.D.W.W.A. proposal would be drawn up to-day and presented for the strikers' approval to-morrow, after which it would be sent to the federation.

F. di Valvasons, discoverer of cure for diabetes, on his way from Shanghai to London, England, where he hopes shortly to publish the result of his work; and Mr. and Mrs. N. W. and Master Hugh Keith Anderson of Galiano, B.C. Keith Anderson is a tea planter connected with the firm of Raja Wella Produce Limited, of London, England.

Others on board the Jefferson were Carlos P. Romulo, president of the Manila Rotary Club and editor and publisher of the D.M.T.M. newspaper syndicate of the Philippines, who is on his way around the world on a pleasure trip with Mrs. Romulo; E. W. Dichman of the United Aircraft Corporation, and Mrs. Dichman; Julius S. Reese, Manila business man on an annual trip to the United States, and Mrs. S. E. Williams, wife of the secretary of the American Embassy in Peiping, China.

Also proceeding to Seattle on the Jefferson were two Catholic sisters returning after three years of service at the Catholic Mission in Tsingtao, and Dr. Arthur V. Casselman, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church of the United States.

REAL NORTH SEA WEATHER

Destroyers are notoriously uncomfortable places to live in when a sea is running, and judging by the attitude of this German vessel, out on trials in typical North Sea weather, the rule holds good in the Reich's new navy. Incidentally the little vessel is an excellent illustration of the manner in which each nation tends to retain a distinctive and easily-recognizable silhouette for its war vessels.

U.S. Fliers Claim New Seaplane Mark

Machine Embodying New Principles Lands at Pasadena After 3,387-mile Flight From Panama

Associated Press

Alameda, Calif., Oct. 16. — Navy fliers who blazed a non-stop trail from Panama in their newly-designed ship, to-day sought official recognition of the 3,387-mile flight as a world distance record for seaplanes.

The golden-winged craft, commanded by the navy's ace distance flier, Lieutenant-Commander Knefler McGinnis, glided to a landing here at 2.21.15 p.m. yesterday, thirty-four hours and fifty-one minutes from Panama.

McGinnis, who led a navy squadron 2,399 miles from San Francisco bay to Hawaii in 1934, said he believed the flight from Panama would better the seaplane distance record held by Mario Spoffani, Italian flier.

Spoffani's mark is 3,063 miles, made in a flight last July from Malfalcone, Italy, to Bervera, British Somaliland.

The barograph of the twin-motored seaplane was turned over to Frank A. Flynn, observer for the National Aeronautical Association, who said it would be sent to the International Aeronautic Federation in Paris, France, for consideration of a possible distance record.

To break the world mark, the experimental seaplane, which utilizes new principles in aircraft design, must better the Italian's record by 100 miles.

FOR "ALL-RED" CABLE ROUTE

J. W. Perry Stresses Need of Marking Messages "Via Imperial"

In connection with a campaign to bring before Canadians the advantages of using the "all-red" cable route for messages to Great Britain, J. W. Perry of Cable and Wireless Limited, London, is in Victoria to-day.

Thousands of dollars in cable revenues are diverted from British to United States pockets every week, and thousands of words are routed by longer lines, through the failure of senders to mark their messages "Via Imperial," according to Mr. Perry.

An agreement in force between the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs and United States lines provides that half of all unmarked cables shall be routed by way of Montreal and New York instead of being transmitted direct from Montreal to London over British wires.

Cable and Wireless Limited, the Imperial route, was organized in 1928 at a conference in London at which the Canadian government was represented. Before that time there was no all-British route from Canada to England.

WORLD TOURS WERE POPULAR

Many People Took Individual World Voyages During the Last Summer

New York, Oct. 16.—A marked increase over last year in the number of persons taking summer round the world tours has just been announced by the Cunard White Star Line, which is now planning a similar series of tours for 1936.

According to the Cunard White Star Tour Department, over 100 persons have taken such round the world tours during July and August, as compared with about half that number during the same period in 1934.

Most of these passengers traveled first and cabin class, and the balance tourist class. Passengers were carried over globe-circling routes of over 30,000 miles from both New York and San Francisco, visiting England, France, Egypt, India, Malay Peninsula, China, Japan and Honolulu in co-operation with the P. and O. and N.Y.K. Lines.

As these round the world tours were planned for July and August, this made it possible not only for travelers to get away from business during the vacation months, but also to visit most world ports during the ideal time of the year and Europe during its holiday season. In most cases generous stopovers were made at such important cities as London, Cairo, Bombay and Tokio, it also being possible to arrange many optional side trips or excursions. Particulars for a series of similar summer round the world tours in 1936 will soon be announced by the Tour Department of the Cunard White Star Line.

SHIP MAY FACE ARCTIC WINTER

Steamer Threatened By Ice on Slave River; Plane Stormbound

Canadian Press

Fort Chipewyan, Alta., Oct. 16.—King Winter's icy fingers reached down from the Arctic Tuesday and closed in on all sides, threatening to catch a belated river steamer in his grip and grounding a northland flier until the winter flying season opens.

The Hudson's Bay Company steamer Northland Echo, en route to Fort McMurray with sixteen passengers and a cargo of $500,000 worth of radium and gold ore from Great Bear Lake and the Yellowknife mineral areas, is held here by wind, rain and snow. Ice forming on the Slave River threatens to hold the boat fast until the break-up next spring. The Echo is making the latest trip in the history of northland navigation.

Pilot Jimmy Warren, flying for Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, is reported frozen in at Jubilee mine camp on Neely Lake, sixteen miles north of Beaverlodge Point, Lake Athabaska.

NIAGARA STILL IN AUSTRALIA

Volunteer Crew May Bring Canadian-Australasian Liner Here

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—Crew members of the Canadian-Australasian liner Niagara, tied up in Sydney, Australia, since last Wednesday, have maintained their decision refusing to sail the ship to Vancouver, where a waterfront strike has been in progress since June 4, it was reported here to-day.

The report stated the vessel is unable to obtain a crew at Sydney from among union seamen and firemen and indicated she will either be laid up indefinitely or brought here by a volunteer crew. She would then be manned by Canadian seamen under British Board of Trade articles.

J. C. Irons, general manager of the steamship company, said the report was substantially correct. He declared it probable the liner would sail from Sydney within a day or two and, by omitting her Auckland call, reach Vancouver in time to load and clear about November 7, her scheduled sailing date.

Officials of the Longshore and Water Transport Workers of Canada, central strike body here, stated the Niagara crew would not man the ship without the union's approval. They also stated the Pacific Maritime Federation of the United States Pacific Coast, which recently raised the ban on "hot cargo" ships, stood ready to revive the embargo on ships from the strike area at the request of the L.W.T.W.C.

JOINT BARGAIN FARES SHORTLY

C.N.R. and C.P.R. to Offer Excursion Rates to Central Cities

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—Special round-trip excursion fares to Winnipeg, Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans this winter are announced by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways, to go into effect November 11 and will continue on sale until next May 14. They will carry a generous limit, six months in addition to date of sale.

Designed to stimulate the more economical modes of travel, these fares will affect intermediate and coach classes of tickets only.

Such fares will be in effect from points in British Columbia, Washington and Oregon.

Not for many years has such cheap travel been available during winter months between west and east and a good movement of passengers is anticipated.

Mechanical Cow Goes Down to Sea

Emulsifier in New Orient Liner Would Make Any Grass-fed Holstein Go Green With Envy

Many are the mechanical gadgets which now go down to the sea in ships, to the bewilderment of the older members of the vessels' engine-room staff. By now most engineers consider themselves pretty-well hardened to innovations in auxiliaries.

But even the most hardened raised their eye-brows when they heard that the new Orient liner Orion was to put to sea with a "mechanical cow" on board for the benefit of the passengers.

There will now be no need to rely upon milk in the refrigerator or upon milk taken at ports of call, seeing that this "superemulsifier" provides the finest milk.

The apparatus consists of a double tank capable of making reconstituted milk, cream, or ice cream mix at the rate of sixty gallons an hour, a record which no grass-fed cow could ever hope to achieve.

WILL GATHER IN HONOLULU

Business Leaders of the Pacific Will Meet in Hawaii Late Next Month

An opportunity for business men of the Pacific area to meet for an analytical discussion of their problems will be afforded at the Honolulu joint meeting of the Western Division of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and the Pacific Foreign Trade Council. The meeting has been called for November 27-30.

A. F. Haines, president of the Pacific Foreign Line, is inviting business men and organizations of the Pacific countries to attend and also to submit opinions and recommendations on matters that will assist the council in arriving at conclusions which will promote trade recovery and general economic well-being. Mr. Haines is one of fifty-one other Directors of the Pacific Foreign Trade Council whose experience in Pacific shipping and foreign trade covers three score years or more. It is the opinion of these men that frank expressions even on controversial subjects, and an exchange of these among business men, are the best means of accomplishing progress in foreign trade.

MANY SUBJECTS

The sessions of the Pacific Foreign Trade Council will deal with subjects as "Relief from Fluctuating Exchange," "Trade Barriers Affecting Cargo, Passengers and Ships." "Unnecessary Exactions on Imported Goods," "The Future of Phillipine Island Trade," "The Changing Trends of the Pacific Trade," "The Proposed Reciprocal Trade Agreements with and Among Pacific Countries," the "Relationship of Empire Preferential Policy upon Trade Between Pacific Countries." Many of these will be round table discussions so that an expression of opinion will be secured from as many sources as possible.

The Western Division of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in a broad sense also is centreing its programme around the problems of the Pacific Area. "The Pacific Air Lines and Foreign Trade" will be carried by Stanley Kennedy, president of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce; president of the National Chamber, Harper Sibley, will present "A Business Programme for Business Recovery;" Frederick J. Koster, president, California Barrel Company and a director of the Pacific Foreign Trade Council, will speak on "American Fundamentals;" R. J. Cromie, owner and editor of The Vancouver Sun will speak on "Problems of Transpacific Communication;" the topic of A. F. Harper, president of the Pacific Foreign Trade Council, will be "Effects on Pacific Trade of the Changing Trends of Commerce."

The membership of the two organizations arranging this commerce includes influential business men and commercial organizations of Western Canada, United States and Mexico.
